Farmer Bruised, Not Knocked Out, Expert On Business Reports

(Editor's Note: Sam Dawson, business reporter for the Associated Press, is making a coast-to-coast trip checking up on business conditions in vital areas. Today, he reports from the heart of the agricultural belt.

By SAM DAWSON
DES MOINES (AP) — Don't give the farmer a short count. He may be bruised but he isn't knocked out.

But you can't whack 15 per cent or so off the farmer's one-time income without Iowa and the rest of the Midwest hurting—in spite of diversification since the end of the war.

"The good farm operator isn't crying and hasn't cried," says a country banker in daily touch with the farmers. "In the big years after the war he took his gravy and he took care of it. The poor operators got the gravy too, but some of them didn't take care of it. Now the marginal farmers are crying hard."

Some call this judgment harsh. However, drought and slumping farm product prices have hit hard and broadly. And although many a farmer is hurting, its chiefly the marginal one.

The farmer is still the big wheel in the economy of Iowa and the Midwest, even if the wheel has a smaller diameter than it used to. Since 1950, the dollar volume of Iowa's manufacturing output has topped that of agriculture and that takes in good years and bad.

But when the farmer's income drops, trade feels it. The effect can be pinpointed by store sales. Younkers, largest Des Moines department store, has had a drop in sales, which officials attribute mostly to the drop in farm income, chiefly when the price of hogs slid down last year. But Younkers' store in Sioux City has had a much larger drop percentage.

Why? Younkers officials explain it this way: Sioux City's purchasing area draws largely from farm income. Des Moines, on the other hand, has other income—manufacturing plants, insurance companies' pay-rolls.

Like many others, he believes that the farmers who were really hurt by the setback of recent months were the postwar farmers who bought land at peak prices and lots of machinery on time.

Over-all, in Younkers' eight Iowa stores the drop in sales volume due to farm troubles could be five to seven per cent, the store officials estimate.

"Cut a farmer's income as it has been cut and he stops buying," a store spokesman says. "And just a few percentage marks off our sales volume means a lot in the retail business in this day of rising costs of operation."

Is it lack of money or lack of confidence that has stopped farm buying? Businessmen and bankers here believe it's both. Some farmers don't have any money to spend. Some have reserves but are cautious.

"A 10 to 15 per cent cut in the 10-year average income will stop a farmer from buying," says Don E. Edison, executive secretary of a cooperative, the Farmers Grain Dealers Assn. of Iowa.

Like many others, he believes that the farmers who were really hurt by the setback of recent months were the postwar farmers who bought land at peak prices and lots of machinery on time.

Forest Fire Kills 19 British GIs

Troops Closing Trap On Rebel Chief On Cyprus As Blaze Flares

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Nineteen British soldiers, engaged in a manhunt for Greek Cypriot rebel chiefs in the Troodos Mountains, were trapped by a forest fire yesterday and lost their lives.

Eighteen others were injured, some of them seriously, when a sudden shift of wind blew the fire at the troops. Many servicemen were injured when the blaze caught their vehicles and the fuel tanks blew up.

The injured were evacuated from the area by helicopter.

About 2,000 British troops had been engaged in an extensive operation in the area for several days, seeking to close in on George Grivas, the former Greek army colonel the British say leads the terrorist rebel organization EOKA under the name of "Digenis."

The British believed they were about to close the net on Grivas and 10 other EOKA leaders who went into Greece when a forest fire broke out in the sun-baked ridges.

THE BRITISH, fearing local villagers would help the rebels escape through the cordon of troops, told the local people that their help was not needed in fighting the flames.

The troops, however, were inexperienced fire fighters and the blaze got out of hand and spread quickly over a broad area of brush and scrub pine. It was brought under control today.

The cause of the fire was not determined. It has been suspected that the rebels have set some previous fires, but the British also have been accused of starting some through mortar fire and carelessness of troops.

British intelligence authorities said they had built up a good file of information on "Digenis" from captured EOKA men.

The captives, nearly all young men in their late teens or early 20s, stress the iron discipline imposed by "Digenis." They said he did not hesitate to shoot past the ears of any of his men who did not obey quickly.

The British said they had captured orders in his handwriting saying "Only I will issue orders as to whom is to be assassinated. Anyone disobeying me will be executed."

The rebel campaign resulted in the first death of an American Saturday night. U. S. Vice Consul William P. Boteler, 26, of Washington, D. C. was killed by two bombs tossed into a restaurant in Nicosia. Five other Americans, radio employees of the U. S. State Department, were seated with him. Three were injured.

'Golden Age' Of Fitness Seen For Youth In U. S.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The President's conference on Fitness of American Youth was told today the nation may be approaching a "golden age of fitness" in which each individual will take pride in his own physical, mental and spiritual growth.

With Vice President Nixon presiding in the place of the convalescing President Eisenhower, who called the conference, the two-day workshop opened today at the Naval Academy. About 150 were on hand.

Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, sounded the keynote with his vision of a golden age of fitness.

One of the chief aims of the conference is to explore how the federal government can assist organizations already engaged in physical fitness work for youths.

Highway Parley Slated In Logan

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio Highway Director S. O. Linzell said today a hearing will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday in Hocking County Courthouse, Logan, to consider further improvements of U. S. 33 between Columbus and Athens.

The highway department proposes to relocate and establish limited access on 3½ miles of the highway, beginning a mile northwest of the intersection of Ohio 595 in Hocking County and rejoining U. S. 33 after bypassing the village of Haydenville.

Steel Union Policy Chiefs Study Breakdown In Parley

NEW YORK (AP) — The 170-member Wage Policy Committee of the United Steelworkers of America meets today to consider the breakdown in the union's joint contract negotiations with the Big Three steel firms.

The breakdown in the talks developed after the policy group rejected contract proposals offered by the Big Three — U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic. Union President David McDonald said yesterday the joint talks, first ever held in the basic steel industry, had "gotten nowhere" and that the union would return to its former procedure of negotiating with steel firms individually.

McDonald and U. S. Steel Vice President John A. Stephens said, however, that the decision to hold talks with 11 individual steel companies did not mean the Big Three negotiations were dissolved.

"We shall be in communication with each other," said McDonald, after a 90-minute meeting yesterday ended in a stalemate.

BOTH SIDES said the situation has not altered since the union rejected Big Three's offer of a five-year contract. This called for package wage and fringe benefits which the companies said amounted to about 65 cents an hour over the length of the contract.

The companies said this would mean 17½ cents the first year, but the union said the take-home pay would be "about a nickel."

Present wages for 650,000 steelworkers average $2.48 an hour. McDonald termed it "too little and too late" and made plans to begin individual negotiations with the Big Three companies and with Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown, Inland, Great Lakes, Wheeling, Allegheny-Ludlum, Pittsburgh and Armco.

Women Urge Cut In Military Fund

OBERLIN (AP) — Planning for a change from heavy military spending to an economy based on production for civilian uses, has been recommended by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

The league's annual meeting, which closes today, unanimously agreed to ask this of President Eisenhower and Harold Stassen, his assistant on disarmament.

It declared that if plans for such a change were developed, it would show the United States is sincere in trying to halt an armament race, and would help obtain public backing for total disarmament.

Doctors Say 7 Pounds Lost By President As Result Of Operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon conferred with President Eisenhower at Walter Reed Hospital today but reported there was absolutely no discussion of whether Eisenhower intends to remain in the presidential race.

Nixon told a news conference after the visit that Eisenhower will "speak for himself" in answer to the big question when he feels the time is right.

Asked whether there was any discussion whatever of politics at his meeting with the President, Nixon replied:

"The answer is no. That is categorical without any qualification." Eisenhower himself, Nixon went on, will "select the time and place" for discussion of his political future.

The vice president added that he has "great confidence" the President "will weigh all the factors concerned and make the proper decision."

Nixon noted that on Feb. 29 Eisenhower announced he was willing to run for a second term.

NIXON SAID HE believes that until the President announces any change in his plans, "the rest of us" should not discuss the situation.

Nixon went on to say that "our primary interest at this time" is to help bring about Eisenhower's complete recovery.

Nixon was asked then whether he got the impression that Eisenhower is "a man ready to run again."

Nixon replied that the President himself is the man to answer that question.

Eisenhower, he said, is familiar with the burdens of the presidency, and "he is the man who should speak" eventually.

Nixon reported that Eisenhower "looked thinner" to him, and noted an announcement that the President weighs seven pounds less than when he entered the hospital.

Press Secretary James Hagerty said the doctors told him the loss in weight is considered normal in the wake of an operation such as the President had.

Hagerty said the physicians noted that for several days after surgery Eisenhower was fed nothing but glucose and water intravenously, and that he had nothing but liquids by mouth for a few days. He got his first soft food last Saturday.

After the conference with Nixon and a short one with Secretary of State Dulles, the President spent (Continued on Page Two)

Kefauver Confession Seen Ending 'Feud' With Adl.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Estes Kefauver and Adlai Stevenson apparently were on the way today toward patching up differences arising from their rivalry for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In the Republican camp there still was no sign of any immediate authoritative announcement on President Eisenhower's political plans in the light of his latest illness.

The Kefauver-Stevenson reconciliation began with a frank admission yesterday from Kefauver that he erred in conducting a "personal" type campaign against Stevenson in latter stages of the Florida and California primary fights both won by Stevenson.

"I got mad, lost my head," Kefauver said. "In the heat of the campaign you sometimes say things you wouldn't say if you thought them over."

In Chicago, Stevenson said Kefauver's remarks would do much to restore unity to the Democratic party. He said he wired Kefauver that he was pleased.

BUT KEFAUVER also reaffirmed that he has no intention of withdrawing from the race for the nomination despite his close defeat in the key Florida primary and a crushing loss in the equally important California primary.

He said also he would take no part in any "behind the scene" maneuvering to throw his support to another candidate if he is unable to win the nomination.

Republicans wondering if Eisenhower will reconsider his earlier decision to run again after recovering from his Sept. 24 heart attack got no help yesterday from James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary.

Hagerty said the President "has given me no indication" of his present intentions as a result of the intestinal surgery he underwent 10 days ago.

Hagerty said also, "I don't think the American people will elect a sick man at all, but I don't think the President is sick."

Hagerty said Eisenhower is completely recovered from his heart attack, and the recent surgery could be compared to operations performed on Stevenson, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Sen. Symington of Missouri and other Democratic presidential possibilities.

Stevenson, meanwhile, said "I think I am the man to beat" for the Democratic nomination. He said he expects to go to the national convention in Chicago Aug. 13 with 500 delegate votes behind him. It takes 686 for nomination.

Retired Engineers Urged As Teachers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Temporary teaching jobs for retired engineers, and part-time teaching jobs for active engineers, could help solve the shortage of instructors in that field, says Joseph W. Barker of New York.

He is president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which today opened a series of technical sessions.

Barker said that if school boards would throw out the red tape over hiring, pensions, and other personnel rules, they could get some good engineering instructors among men who have retired from industry.

Boys Club Sends Ike New Bicycle

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Orlando Boys Club sent President Eisenhower a bicycle yesterday and urged him to take up bike-riding as advised by his heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White.

The club said in a telegram it "wishes to contribute to your speedy recovery in the hope your health will permit you to accept our invitation" to attend the national amateur bicycle races here July 14-15.

HST Hopes Oxford Goes Easy On Latin

LONDON (AP) — Harry S. Truman jokingly said today he just won't get that honorary degree from Oxford University if he has to accept it in Latin.

The ancient British university will give him an honorary doctorate of law Wednesday.

Buckeye Girls' State Awaits 'Election Day'

COLUMBUS (AP) — Party chairmen have been chosen in preparation for tomorrow's elections at Buckeye Girls' State.

The 636 young Ohio women, all entering their senior year in high school, are trying to learn as much about governmental activities as they can in their limited eight-day gathering on the Capital University campus.

Vera Mincks of Columbus and Ann Miller of Shelby were selected yesterday to head the Nationalist and Federalist parties, respectively, two fictitious political groups within which the girls choose candidates for statewide, county and city offices.

Besides being arbitrarily assigned to one of the two parties, delegates to the state are also given residence in 14 mythical counties.

On election day tomorrow, candidates for governor, the Legislature and judicial posts will be voted on.

The governor, whoever she may be, will be honored at an inaugural banquet Wednesday. Two bona fide Ohio officials, Gov. Frank J. Lausche and Chief Justice Carl V. Weyandt of the Ohio Supreme Court, are among several dignitaries who will address the banquet.

At the opening session of Girls' State, delegates received instructions on the formation of political parties.

Cyprus Case Angers U.S.

Bomb Death Of Envoy Labeled As 'Senseless'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, in sharp reaction to the bomb death of an American in Nicosia, today denounced violence on Cyprus "as a blind and senseless course."

State Department press officer Lincoln White read to newsmen an official statement on the death of William P. Boteler, vice consul at Nicosia, who was killed in a bombing Saturday. Three other Americans were injured.

"Mr. Boteler's death does not bring the Cyprus problem one step closer to solution. It only adds to the already considerable cost in human life which has been exacted by violence on the island of Cyprus," the statement said.

The statement seemed to be directed at both the British and Greek officials concerned with the bitter struggle over the future of the Mediterranean island.

White said a protest was planned to be made by the U. S. government only to the British.

Valued Pacer Times Square Felled By Bolt

WASHINGTON C. H. — Harness racing enthusiasts in this city had their fingers crossed today over the health of Time's Square, one of the top-ranking pacers of the nation.

McKinley Kirk, trainer-driver of the five-year-old pacer who has a record for the mile of 1:58.1, said the horse was knocked down and stunned by a bolt of lightning Saturday at Grandview Oval, near Cleveland.

Kirk, an assistant, Seymour Campbell, and five two-year-old horses in Kirk's string, also were stunned by the bolt.

Kirk reported that Time's Square's head was scuffed, but that "only time will tell whether there was permanent injury."

Kirk said that the six horses were in a Grandview stable when the bolt pierced the building. There was no fire.

Kirk had been sitting on a truck outside the barn while Campbell lolled in a chair near the barn door. Kirk returned to his home here over the weekend. Time's Square is owned by Kirk's nephew, Eddie Kirk.

Teenage Driving Champions Named

CLEVELAND (AP) — Driving skill demonstrated in Ohio's teenage Road-E-O in Euclid Saturday won $1,000 scholarships for Sidney Van Court of Andover and Wanda Heck of East Palestine.

Van Court, who will represent Ohio in the national Road-E-O in Washington Aug. 6-9, scored 538 out of a possible 565 and was perfect in the road test. Wanda topped the girls with 413 points.

The tests, sponsored by the Ohio Trucking Assn., Standard Oil Co. of Ohio and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, were given to 140 youngsters, all survivors of local preliminary competition.

Drive Launched To Give Bender Needed Boost

GOP Leaders Admit Some Republicans Lukewarm On Senator

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Republicans with lukewarm feelings toward U.S. Sen. George H. Bender may find it hard to vote in November for a rival who may like Ike.

A drive is on to convince independent-minded voters that President Eisenhower, in anticipation of a second term, wants a Republican-controlled Congress.

The campaign apparently accepts claims that Democrat Gov. Frank J. Lausche, Bender's opponent for senator, gained five terms with the aid of nominally Republican voters.

Republican leaders insist that Lausche, if elected, would vote Senate next year regardless of any admiration for Eisenhower. They assert Lausche always stands with his party "when the chips are down."

"The chips will be down when the next Senate organizes," said Fred J. Milligan of Columbus, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Republican Senatorial Finance Committee.

The attorney reiterated speculation that Bender's vote might determine whether Republicans named the chairmen and a majority of Senate committee members next year to handle Eisenhower's legislative program.

Democrats now hold narrow control in both Houses of Congress.

Milligan was a leader in the Ohio Citizens for Eisenhower movement four years ago. He also was active in the successful 1946 Republican campaign when Thomas J. Herbert beat Lausche for governor, although Lausche came back to win his second term against Herbert in 1948.

Last year Milligan played a major role in the successful drive against a CIO-initiated proposal for big unemployment benefits and supplemental layoff pay. Voters swamped the proposal at the polls.

"We now are organizing Bender-for-Senate committees," Milligan reported. "We are finding that a considerable number of people who were active in the Eisenhower Committee in 1952 will help us."

Milligan speculated that some of the offers to help apparently stemmed from Adlai E. Stevenson's emergence as the current front-runner for the Democratic nomination for President.

He said some Eisenhower backers, who also liked Lausche, resented the governor's endorsement of Stevenson late in the 1952 campaign.

Of that endorsement, Milligan said he expected to find Lausche in the Stevenson camp if the former Illinois governor again wins the Democratic nomination.

He said it follows that such a development would make Lausche unacceptable to Eisenhower backers this year. The result, he explained, would cost the Democratic governor some of the Republican support he needs to become a senator.

Lausche was friendly to Stevenson during the 1952 campaign. But Milligan said it was not until a few days before the election that the governor's appearance with Stevenson at a meeting in Cleveland produced strong reaction among some Ohio Eisenhower backers. The situation developed so late in the campaign that the significance escaped notice in many sections, Milligan asserted.

This year, he said, Eisenhower followers and others will be forewarned.

New "Saucer" Book Places Cold Evidence Before You

Apparently it was up to a Frenchman to write the most convincing book so far in behalf of the so-called "flying saucer" phenomenon.

"The Truth About Flying Saucers," by Alime Michel, eminent French mathematician and engineer, hangs out a long list of questions that are sure to baffle all the honest skeptics. And Michel hits the target by a process that far too many of the "saucer" believers have ignored in the vast stack of "saucer books" already on the market.

Instead of dealing in weird personal experiences (he says, in fact, he has never seen a "saucer") or relating same through uncertain second-hand channels, the author gathers what seems to be one of the most complete collections of objective saucer reports in any library or on any bookstand. Then, the reader is left to draw his or her own conclusions.

True indeed, Michel in most of the cases points to facts that knock holes in the theories of those who refuse to admit the existence of the airborne discs. But he makes it clear that he is merely laying the evidence on the line, and he likewise elaborates on the side of the skeptics when he himself has honest doubts. There is also a good bit of technical discussion for those who like it. Most readers will skip it.

OUT OF IT all has come a book that everybody should read—even those who proclaim in advance their amusement with the whole idea of unexplained objects sailing the skies. The book may fail to break their disbelief, but it is certain to put a lot of wondering dents in it.

In the introduction to "The Truth About Flying Saucers," published less than two weeks ago, Michel lists the highly authoritative sources he has tapped for his work. And then he adds in part:

"The above are the main sources of the facts I have placed on record. I have offered explanations of these facts and the reader will find the explanations accompanying the individual sightings to which they refer, where they are of particular occurrences, or at the end of the book when they involve theories of a more general character. . . It is for my readers to decide whether my explanations of the strange phenomenon which we are investigating are plausible, or whether they merely add to the mystery.

"I can at any rate assure them that I have been careful to guard against preconceived ideas, either about the evidence given by witnesses or their explanations.

"If, after reading my book, the reader finds himself pondering more deeply on the unknown world to which he is now about to be introduced, and inclined to believe that the universe may be more complex and mysterious than he thinks, and that it has not yet surrendered its most fantastic secrets, neither his efforts nor mine will have been in vain."

THE CAREFUL and detached purpose with which Michel approached his job is indicated in his reference to one of his main sources for the new book. He draws upon the work of Major Donald Keyhoe, whose books ("The Flying Saucers Are Real" and "Flying Saucers From Outer Space") were among the first strong arguments printed in the cause of the "saucers." In commenting on this source, Michel said:

"I have relied on the information given by Major Donald Keyhoe in his two books, so far as it is derived from Air Technical Intelligence sightings or records. This attitude on my part must not be taken as indicating any doubts about the value of Major Keyhoe's work.

"He is sometimes rather enthusiastic in his comments, but in recording facts he is scrupulously honest and conscientious."

Dealing as it does with a world-wide look at the "saucer" phenomenon, "The Truth About Flying Saucers" will tell the reader about many strange incidents which were not given prominent attention by the American press. The book also stresses the point that, because "saucers" or other strange flying objects were seen centuries ago in various parts of the world, it does not mean that they cannot continue to exist today.

Michel takes a fresh and closely critical look at most of the better known American "saucer" incidents, beginning with the famed Mantell case. As he points out, the Mantell case is undoubtedly the best known of all the "saucer" stories originating in this country because of its tragic ending.

On January 7, 1948, at Godman Air Base at Fort Knox, Ky., Captain Thomas F. Mantell met his death while pursuing a huge, unidentified object which appeared over the base around 3 p. m.

Kentucky state police had warned the Air Force base to be alert for the object's appearance about one-half hour before that time.

THE DETAILS of this sensational incident, and the many new lights which Michel turns upon it, are far too numerous to mention here. But the reader, even though already familiar with the case, will be impressed anew by several points underlined by Michel as follows:

1. A number of officers in the control tower, while Mantell and two other pilots "scrambled" in F-51 pursuit planes, clearly watched an object that "was a sort of disc, with the top side shaped like an 'inverted cone. . . . It was of gigantic size. . . . At the top was a red spot which glowed intermittently."

2. When Mantell's voice finally came over the loudspeaker, he said: "I am closing in now to take a good look. It is directly ahead of me and still moving at about half my speed. The things looks metallic and of tremendous size."

3. A few minutes later, the other two pilots confirmed that they could also see the object, though Mantell was the only one of the three in position to make a real effort to reach it.

4. A moment later, Mantell reported to the tower: "It's going up now and forward as fast as I am. That's 360 miles per hour. I'm going up to 20,000 feet and if I'm no closer, I'll abandon chase."

5. According to the Air Force,

that was Mantell's last message.

6. HE WAS found dead in the wreckage of his F-51, which — instruments showed — had "disintegrated" only a few minutes after the time recorded on his last radio comment.

7. The Air Force, after at first announcing that Mantell must have been chasing the planet Venus, revised its findings to say that the object "is still considered unidentified."

Of such interesting material is Michel's book composed. If the "saucer" mystery intrigues you at all, you will find "The Truth About Flying Saucers" worth every minute you give it.

WHY GOVERNMENT IS BIG

MANY CITIZENS deplore a big federal government and wonder how it got that way.

Yet there is a vocal demand from the Detroit area that the federal government do something about unemployment caused by lay-offs in the auto industry. Public opinion seems to favor the huge proposed highway spending program for the federal government.

A Kansas newspaper runs an editorial on the front page serving notice that its area, while happy over the reopening of an ordinance plant at Parsons, feels that more contracts should come its way.

In southwest Kansas a group of drought-stricken countries are seeking designation by the federal government as disaster areas to make federal benefits available.

This is the pattern all over the country. Any one of these requests is legitimate and deserves consideration by the federal government.

Yet many individuals still talk as though it is astonishing that the federal government has swollen to its present size. They ignore the unpleasant explanation that their demands have made it so.

A PARADOX—OR IS IT?

THREE OR FOUR pages of want ads appear in a typical Detroit newspaper each day, calling for workers—skilled and semi-skilled persons.

At the same time there are about 175,000 unemployed persons in the state, of whom 112,000 are in Detroit. This unemployment has caused Walter Reuther to issue some of his characteristic diatribes, aimed at the employers.

The reason for this seeming paradox is that automation is taking over so rapidly that unskilled labor is rapidly moving out of the picture. The newer type of employee must know how to operate machines or perhaps have proficiency in some kind of engineering, or in business administration.

Science and know-how are at a premium everywhere and the change is rapid. The moral of the story for young people is not to expect employment as unskilled workers.

NIPPING WAYWARDNESS

AN INTERESTING experiment is being conducted in New York City schools, based on the findings of Harvard University researchers that the symptoms of budding delinquency can be spotted in the child of first grade age. A "delinquency prediction scale" worked out at Harvard has been used to select 300 New York first graders identified as betraying the symptoms.

To half of these children will be applied all the known corrective measures for halting or reversing anti-social tendencies. The rest will be left as a "control" to go their way with no more attention than normally falls to the lot of the difficult pupil.

The basic idea that early childhood years are important in the formation of character is of course familiar to every reading parent. The experiment seeks ways by which this knowledge may be applied to the rearing of a whole generation of happily adjusted adults.

Dads Like Sons To Follow

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Few things warm a man's heart more than Father's Day than to know he has a son following successfully in his footsteps.

And every day is Father's Day to him if he knows the son is showing more promise than he himself did at the same age.

What deeper flow of satisfaction can a father have than to turn over the running of his business to his son, or at least to know that he has a son who will in time be able to shoulder that responsibility?

This desire that a son take up the same calling is probably as old as mankind. Even if a man has met with only mediocre success—or even failure—in his own line of work, he often nourishes a secret hope his son will take up the same path and go on and excel him. It affords a further continuity to his own life and work.

Sometimes, of course, it is impractical for a father to want his son to pursue the same career. Every now and then a 6-foot policeman is a 5-foot-4 son, too small for "the force."

Artists, opera singers and authors have a problem in this respect, too. They have special talents which, for some reason, rarely are hereditary. There have been some distinguished exceptions.

I knew an old Irishman once who used to say gravely that the reason he never wanted to be Pope was because "I couldn't hand the job on to my son."

But lawyers, doctors, politicians and businessmen often have sons who take up the same life-work.

American corporations team with noteworthy examples, ranging from elderly John D. Rockefeller Jr., who followed his famous father in both finance and philanthropy, to young Henry Ford II.

A few more you may not be quite so familiar with: Donald W. Douglas, pioneer airplane designer and manufacturer, has a son, Donald Jr., who, at 38 is vice president in charge of sales and since 1943 has supervised the testing of 20 types of aircraft.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Those who are interested in taking advantage of tax sanctuaries would do well to obtain from the publishers, Prentice-Hall, a pamphlet by Walter H. Diamond on "Tax Advantages of Incorporating in Liberia, Panama and Honduras." Many take advantage of tax sanctuaries which means that whereas most of us pay what the law requires, the corporations that can afford to hire lawyers and accountants can make enormous income tax savings legitimately.

Diamond's purpose is apparently to advise firms that have funds abroad and do not wish to bring them to the United States as dividends which make them subject to income taxes, less the credit for foreign taxes paid and subject also to a possible penalty on unreasonable accumulations.

The pamphlet says: ". . . Liberia, Panama and Honduras. . . have deliberately arranged and designed their laws to permit foreign businesses (particularly American style). . . to make profits and keep them too. Thus, the American business can, in effect, cache its foreign earnings in a Liberian, Panamanian or Honduran corporate pocketbook until it is good and ready to bring them home. In the meantime, those earnings will be sheltered from United States taxes and immune from exchange risks and added foreign taxes."

I had held the view that the best set-up for an American company seeking to evade the income tax was to incorporate in Liechtenstein and to keep the money in Switzerland. Diamond, who is an outstanding authority, believes that Liberia, Panama and Honduras are better than Liechtenstein, which he described as until recently being one of the principal incorporating paradises in the world. He finds that many American firms which formerly were incorporated in Liechtenstein have switched to Liberia, or "if their operations are located in Latin America, to Panama or Honduras."

How many American businesses take advantage of the various tax sanctuaries is not known and is a matter for Congressional investigation. The Liberian government in 1948 set up the International Trust Company of Liberia to advise foreign corporations on how to gain benefits by incorporating in Liberia.

This trust company is also willing to act as a bank, as corporate managers and as resident business agents. Practically every foreign business firm, using Liberia as a tax sanctuary or for other purposes, employs the International Trust Company of Liberia.

It is not necessary for such a corporation actually to engage in commercial or industrial activities in Liberia or even to maintain an office there, except for the use of the International Trust Company's facilities. It is not necessary for any Liberian to be an officer or director of a Liberian corporation and the books and records of such a corporation can be kept anywhere in the world.

One of the most irksome problems that faces those who own large quantities of "hot" money, that is, usually American dollars in unaccounted for cash, is to legitimize that money without disclosing its real ownership. Liberia offers a haven for such money because, under its laws, "all stock can be bearer stock and the owners can thereby obtain complete anonymity. Liberian law does not require disclosure of the names of companies incorporated there or their owners."

This is an excellent situation for those who own the kind of money that cannot bear investigation and who wish to use their funds to buy existing and important

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER 8

PRISCILLA and Rita stopped behind Mr. Todd's car and sat looking at the ancient house. It was a huge house, many-galleried, weather-beaten, but not unattractive. The windows were long and shuttered, a shutter hanging here and there. There was a Captain's walk, and the house was surrounded by a tall iron fence on top of a foot-high brick wall. Huge oaks and magnolias crowded into the tangled garden. Heavy columns supported an upper gallery. Windows reached to the floor. A brick walk led from the entrance gates to the broad steps. Bricks were missing, grass growing in the spaces.

Priscilla said, "If it could only talk, what tales it could tell! And it does look sort of haunted, doesn't it?"

"It certainly looks lonely and deserted," Rita said.

"What on earth will I do with the house if I can't sell it, Rita? It's monstrous!"

"You'll sell. Somebody will buy it for some purpose—and of course the sooner the better. Look like a rambling hotel." Her eyes moved over the grounds. "Must have really been a show place at one time, but I can understand why Mr. Todd said it would be difficult to find a purchaser."

Mr. Todd joined them. "It looks just as it did the first time I saw it, and folks say it's looked the same for fifty years. 'Course the shades used to be up, and grass and weeds were out."

"It's the loneliest-looking place I ever saw," said Priscilla. "Even a ghost would be lonesome there."

Mr. Todd led the way up the creaking steps and unlocked the heavy door. It was dim and cool inside and smelled of mold and dust, mice and rotting wood. He raised a few shades, opened shutters, revealing a thick, brownish curtain of dust over everything. Curtains hung, fragile and brittle with dust. There was a square piano with most of the ivories missing. All the furniture was heavy, richly carved, very beautiful. Priscilla was thinking that room could not be found for it in a modern home. Chandeliers which had held candles in long-ago days were dusty and fly-specked; upholstery was faded and worn. There was a huge grandfather clock, old albums, pictures.

They opened drawers, discovering heavy dull silver, good china, yellowed linens.

Rita said, "Let's look around this time, Priscilla. Then decide later what you should do with it. There's no use trying to decide right now. Some of these pieces will bring a lot of money."

They spent almost an hour going from room to room, upstairs and down, and when they were down again, Mr. Todd said briskly, "I'll just look up. When you decide what you're going to do, we'll come back. You can be thinking about it."

"We won't take any more of your time Mr. Todd," Rita said agreeably. "Leave the key with us and we'll look around a little more. I saw a sign down the street advertising antiques. They might be interested in some of these things."

Mr. Todd's hesitation was so apparent that Rita was sure he didn't want them to have the key. He turned it over reluctantly, suggesting that they drop it by his office, to which Rita made no reply. She did ask if he could send someone to cut the grass and clean the grounds and give the place a better appearance before putting it on the market.

They were still there an hour later when Mr. Todd returned. His voice was worried. "I talked to several boys, but they all turned me down. Word has got around that the place is haunted and it's going to be hard to get any of them to work here."

"Then how can we get the place cleaned up?"

"I'll keep looking. Frankly," he hesitated, "if you take my advice, you'll not bother about it. Won't really make any difference when it comes to a sale."

Mr. Todd had been gone only a few minutes when a boy of about fourteen came to the door. He had met Mr. Todd. He said that he would be willing to work outside but wouldn't clean inside, "because it was haunted."

Priscilla laughed, which was a mistake. The boy said evenly, "Tain't nothin' to laugh about."

"That's right," Rita said in a friendly voice. "But we don't know much about such things. Won't you tell us why it's haunted?"

The boy shifted from one foot to the other, his eyes moving over the gaunt old house. "Don't know 'zactly why. It jes' is. Lights move around in one of those windows upstairs. And people hear voices, whisperin' like."

Priscilla said, "I'll surely accept the first offer. The place is giving me the creeps."

"Power of suggestion," Rita said. "I wouldn't say sell it because it's haunted, but sell because it's the only sensible thing to do. Let's decide what you want to do with the furniture, or better still, why not turn the whole thing over to Mr. Todd to handle with some real estate firm?"

They were preparing to look the door when Rita said, "Wait a minute. I'm not sure that I locked the back door."

She went back, found the door locked, and had turned to go when she saw a roll of bills on the floor—new, crisp, and shiny. Wonderingly she picked the roll up and examined it. Twenty-five twenty-dollar bills under a rubber band. Had Mr. Todd dropped it there? If so, and he had missed it, he certainly must be upset by now. She would have to telephone him.

"Look, Priscilla, did you drop this?"

Priscilla looked at the roll of bills and gasped. "Heavens, no! I never carry that much cash. Where did it come from?"

"I found it on the floor by the back door. I wonder why we didn't see it before."

Priscilla giggled. "Well, if the place is haunted with greenbacks, maybe I'd better not sell after all."

"He must have. How else would it have got there? That's new money—and no one's been inside for a long time, he said. How much is it?"

"Twenty-five twenty-dollar bills."

"Glory be!" Priscilla exclaimed. "Rita, what if Mr. Todd says it isn't his?"

"It has to be his; there's no other explanation. Let's go and telephone him."

Premenstrual Tension A Many-Sided Problem

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PREMENSTRUAL tension is no longer a hush-hush subject. It is a serious problem, but a problem with a solution.

Family quarrels, job interruptions, social conflicts—even divorce and crime—frequently can be traced directly to this terrific pressure build-up preceding the monthly periods.

Doctors estimate that as many as 50 to 75 per cent of American women in the child-bearing period of life—some put the figure affected at 20,000,000—suffer in varying degrees.

Suffer In Silence

For the most part, they suffer in silence.

Many women are unaware of any physical or personality changes during this monthly cycle. And many others, although acutely aware of the situation, are resigned in the belief that nothing can be done to help them.

Pre-menstrual tension may range from a feeling of mild fatigue to a full-fledged psychosis. Nervous and emotional instability is the major complaint.

The results may be serious. It's about time we had a frank discussion of this problem.

Basic Cause

Since many women are completely unaware of the basic cause of their difficulty, they do not realize that often they actually are the real source of their family disturbances and social conflicts.

slightest trace of heredity in our family!"

An elderly savant from abroad was receiving an honorary degree at a midwestern university. A young lady in the audience asked, "What does he do?" The reply was, "He studies astronomy."

Depression, irritability, insomnia and migraine are but a few of the results of premenstrual tension. Is it any wonder that a woman under such a strain each month may not be the same loving wife, mother, cordial friend or good worker that she is at other times?

Often she will say and do things she later regrets.

The distress leading to these upsetting incidents generally subsides with the beginning of menstruation. However, the results of a few hasty and ill-chosen words during the tension period may build up over the months until an otherwise happy marriage at times even ends in separation or divorce.

Both husbands and wives must understand the situation clearly. They must realize that it is a medical problem and that a doctor can supply relief.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

P. W.: I have been bothered for years with perspiring hands. Can you advise me what to do?

Answer: Excessive sweating of the palms may be an indication of some general disorder, such as an infection or perhaps even difficulty with the thyroid gland. In many cases, it is a localized condition, the cause for which cannot be determined.

There is no treatment which is of any particular value. Of course, a careful search should be made for the cause, so that it can be eliminated.

Lipstick Classed Most Important By Today's Gal

Where would milady be without lipstick, that bright badge of courage?

It is one of the most important of all cosmetics. When a gal has her lipstick on, she is ready to face the world. Without it, she feels and looks, drab and colorless.

But lipstick, too, can present problems.

Do you have trouble with lipstick "wearing off"? Unconsciously you probably eat it off. The result is a patchy lip line that is anything but pretty. The only solution is to concentrate and stop licking your lips.

Dry lips are not attractive either. Apply lipstick to them and the effect is worsened. The thing to do is to clear up the dry condition by using a lip pomade. Apply it at night and we promise that morning lips will be smooth and attractive again.

Lipstick that has been applied with a heavy hand also causes a beauty problem; it will rub off on the teeth, where it looks perfectly terrible. Avoid this by blotting lips after an application.

Never use rouge and lipstick that do not match. Nothing looks worse than a gal wearing an orange-red rouge with a blue-red lipstick. Match the two cosmetics and you will be sure they flatter.

When it comes to color, lipstick should match clothes, too. That is why you need a wardrobe of lipstick shades so you will have something to go with everything.

13 Attend Meet Of Five Points Christian Church

The Ladies Aid of the Five Points Christian Church held its June session with 13 members answering roll call.

"Bless Be the Tie" was sung and the meeting was concluded with prayer by Cora Winfough.

Mrs. Reid appointed Mildred Houser and Florence Long to have the program for July. Refreshment committee: Eleanor Ingman, Dorsey Beathards and Bernice Wells, served refreshments.

Akron Girl Reporter Tells Of Impressions Of Russians

By HELEN WATERHOUSE
Akron Beacon Journal Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—I'm back home after covering 2,000 miles of Soviet-land by train and boat, Russian autos and Russian planes.

Back to the joy of a good cup of American coffee, to the relief of not having your passport confiscated every time you enter a hotel, to a land where the individual counts again.

It's a relief to find little girls who are not all wearing the bright red ties of the junior Communist organization, the Pioneers.

It's a relief to find bigger girls who are trim and shapely and beautiful. Instead of drahly dressed, overweight teenagers with muscular arms.

It's wonderful not to have to carry on any more endless discussions on the most minor details of business or travel, with people unused to American streamlined-business methods.

On the plane coming home, it was wonderful, too, to hear a passenger planning to go to church on the morrow. And another passenger hoping to get into New York in time for a ball game.

One of the impressions that hit hardest was the complete godlessness of the Soviet people today. A visit to dozens of churches proved that only a few very old people attend the comparatively few churches still open for business.

Many churches have become museums, like the beautiful ones in the Kremlin and Red Square. After walking many blocks in the city of Odessa, I found one Roman Catholic Church and several ancient Russian churches, all practically empty except for the aged. I found no Protestant churches.

Young people frankly told me there is no God, no Jesus Christ. "That is all a fable . . . yours is a weak religion," they said.

As to ball games, while Soviet youth are keenly athletic and stadiums are sprinkled all over the country, American baseball is unknown. Rugby and soccer take the place of football.

I watched the Swedish steward aboard my plane as he solicitously tucked a blanket around a little boy passenger and fastened his seat belt.

No one bothers with the comfort of passengers on Russian planes and there are no blankets or seat belts.

When I overheard two young airplane mechanics in Copenhagen on the return trip arguing over job salaries I was thankful to be back in a land where there is still competition.

The thing you miss most in Soviet-land is the entire lack of a spirit of competition. The complete complacency of these people, who always say they find their lives perfectly satisfactory today.

"After all we had starvation and war tragedies before"—is another thing that impresses you. It's unnatural to find so many people all satisfied with what their government is giving them, with apparently no ambitions to better themselves in any way.

Above all, the overwhelming desire for peace—the word that is on everyone's lips over there today—is amazing. While their leaders go on putting out peace propaganda and building the country's strength toward war, these people plead for a peaceful world every time you talk to them, in groups or singly.

"Please take the message back to America that we want peace," said every class of school children, every gathering of men and women I interviewed.

There are no war toys allowed on the toy counters. A recent law passed since the Stalin era says that any one overheard discussing a future war will receive a sentence. A sentence means banishment to Siberia. There are no jails or penitentiaries.

Other impressive things—There is no juvenile delinquency in Sovietland. Plenty of young fellows get drunk on Russian wine, and act silly on the street, however.

But I was told in Yalta that robbery is practically unknown there. Stories of juvenile delinquency in America baffled them. Russian youths are always busy, working at jobs or at their athletics.

Since all women and girls work at one job or another as soon as they are out of school, there is little chance for wild parties. Comic books are forbidden and so are detective stories and magazines of the love story and pulp variety.

Everyone reads in Russia—from the coal miner who told me he took his family to the opera twice a week and who was reading Theodore Dreiser's "American Tragedy" and Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield," to the middle aged housewife in her crowded flat which had a bookcase of the classics—both Russian and English—corner of her room.

Russia is a country dedicated to youth, with youth statuary instead of billboards on every roadside, with camps for young pioneers far more deluxe than the best of our summer camps at home.

"Palaces of culture" where youth may receive free training in art and music and cultural things, along with free painting materials to create the pictures they would paint, are in every city.

Nurseries for workers children are located in attractive, lawn-surrounded buildings, with plenty of nurses, doctors and teachers.

Real Property Value Setup Seen Target Of Ohio Study

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Local and state tax officials soon may be taking a closer look at Ohio's Hoffman Act—the legislation which seeks to equalize real property values on a state-wide basis.

There have been comments from various officials indicating their belief that the objective of the act may not be fully realized unless corrective legislative action is taken.

The Ohio Board of Tax Appeals, in the past week completed approval of the 1955 real property valuation abstracts of the state's 88 counties. The abstracts are the source for collection of 1956 taxes.

Total valuation of all real property was fixed at $14,141,453,880. That was a boost of $1,108,970,650 over the previous year.

But the "equalization" troubles were brought to bold relief by the fact that, for the first time, various county auditors were required to prepare their respective abstracts showing a complete breakdown of four major classes of properties.

This included agricultural, resiers watching over the future Soviet citizens.

College students even get paid a monthly wage.

Older workers from coal miners to bank heads luxuriate together in vacation time in flossy sanatoriums built on the former homes of the "bourgeois," the pre-revolution wealthy classes.

Each Soviet worker, male or female—and there are more women than men working in Russia today—is required by law to take a month's vacation.

I found many of them enjoying the luxuries of hotel life at Sochi on the Black Sea, sometimes called the Russian Riviera. The hotels were once the homes of the wealthy. The tables where the Soviet factory worker or street sweeper and his wife ate in a magnificent dining room, were filled with glass goblets and shining with silver.

Everything was sweetness as far as the Soviet treatment of a reporter, travelling all alone, went.

People were hospitable. They welcomed me into their homes. I went alone, without an interpreter, talking German and French to those who understood the language finding my younger people who speak English a little.

But all the time I felt that the leaders of the Kremlin I saw at a party, for all their gentle quipping, were only camouflaging.

I'm glad I was here when his new period of propaganda was on. Last September, as one of my Russian friends said, she wouldn't have dared sit on a park bench with me.

One other thing. The horrors of war hit you in the face in these Russian cities that were bombed almost into extinction. It seems like every other man you see on the streets has a leg off, an arm off or is pushing himself—legless—on a little cart. Women in black widows' dresses predominate in the crowds.

"Peace—peace." No wonder they want peace.

American corporations without disclosing the real owners. Diamond further says:

"Liberia is particularly well-known as a haven for American shipping seeking relief from high United States taxes and labor costs. The International Trust Company handles the registration of vessels under the Liberian flag. The Government's only charge is a registration fee plus an annual tax based on tonnage. Part of this annual charge goes to the Trust Company."

It is possible, under American law, for a Liberian corporation to deposit its funds in a bank in the United States where they are kept as Liberian funds, which can then be applied for business purposes outside the United States.

To make up an example out of whole cloth for purposes of illustration, the international dope syndicate could organize a company which it might call the "Atlantic Ocean Corporation," or any other name, as a Liberian corporation, the real owners of which need never be disclosed. This anonymous corporation could then deposit its funds in New York banks and buy American businesses.

As being largely responsible. These factors switched valuations from real to personal property classifications.

As a result, much of the previously classified real estate property has become personal property. And trouble comes from the fact much of this new personal property has not been reported by the county auditors.

Consequently, the counties have not only lost tax revenues from the decline in real property taxes, but even returns from the newly classified personal property.

Clyde C. Sherrick, veteran member of the board, says it is not within the realm of the board to prescribe any remedy, but rather a question to be considered by the Ohio Legislative Service Commission and the Legislature itself.

"It is a question," he said, "as to just how far the state intends to go in keeping down taxes to bring new industry into the state."

Buyers Rush For Deliveries On Steel; Price Hike Seen

CLEVELAND (AP)—"Steel" Magazine today reported a last minute rush to get steel deliveries by the end of the month.

It said buyers were stepping up efforts to get shipments already promised them. Orders still could be placed for nearby delivery on some of the lesser items, such as some wire products and cold-finished bars.

Steel users are motivated in their efforts to get deliveries now by promise of higher prices in the second half of the year and by the possibility of a steel strike. Trade talk says prices may go up $8 to $15 a ton.

Regardless of uncertain price tags and delivery dates, pressure continues for shipments from railroad car shops and heavy construction and machinery accounts. Structural and plates continue in short supply with structural awards running 40 per cent ahead of volume a year ago. The light, flat rolled items are moving slower. "Steel" said interest in the third quarter lags, particularly from automotive buyers.

The publication said there was little chance of getting in more of the major tonnage, although steel-making operations rose one-half percentage point to 97 per cent of the rated national ingot capacity, the first change in the production rate in a month.

Steel prices held steady, with "Steel's" composite on finished products unchanged at $128.98 a net ton. Its price composite on steelmaking grades of scrap dropped to $46 a gross ton, a decline of 17 cents.

Irwin H. Such, editor-in-chief of "Steel," said new and unlimited horizons are being made for the metalworking industry by the "irresistible pressure of the American people for more goods and more time to enjoy them in a nation that is preparing to repel an atomic invasion."

He said the total output of goods and services produced in the nation in 1956 will establish a new record of nearly $2,400 a person. The figure, he said, may reach $3,200 by 1965.

"The challenge is clear," Such said. "In the immediate years ahead, America must increase her production one-third."

"It's no wonder that industrial and government-financed research this year are at a new high of $4.5 billion—up 400 million dollars from 1955, and up 750 million dollars from 1954."

District ingot production rates included Youngstown 101 per cent of rated capacity, no change; Wheeling 100.5 per cent, no change; Cleveland, 103.5 per cent, up 4.5 points and Cincinnati 92.5 per cent, down 2 points.

He was driving his wife to Massachusetts Memorial Hospital with a police escort when it became evident there wasn't time to get there.

It also was the Chaplain's fifth wedding anniversary.

Jazz Guitarist Dies In Hollywood Fire

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jazz guitarist Billy Dillard, 30, a member of the Red Norvo Trio, was burned to death in a fire which apparently started from a lighted cigarette.

Firemen said the fire broke out in Dillard's downstairs apartment early Sunday and quickly spread to an upstairs hall before it was brought under control.

Robert Tully, 23, a UCLA student and professional trumpet player, was seriously burned in the blaze.

Lag screws can be used to draw up the joints between stiles and rails of paneled doors when they separate as a result of warpage. This can often be done without removing the door. After lag screw is in place, cover the head with wood putty or hardwood plug and finish to match the rest of the door.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court's nine justices, target for more attacks than any high court in a generation, made historic decisions on civil rights, civil liberties and the power of the states in the session just ended.

But it could be considered 100 per cent consistent only in its opposition to racial segregation in public places. It showed great concern for individuals. But it did not always rule in their favor against the states.

Nevertheless, Southerners attack it for its stand on segregation. And states' rights, including Southerners, want the court "curbed" for the restraint it put on the actions of states, or for knocking out their laws.

The court, in the term which ended last week, outlawed segregation in tax-supported colleges and universities and in public places of recreation. This followed up its ban in 1954 on public school segregation.

But it avoided throwing another log on the racial fire when it was asked to rule whether segregation on buses within a state is also unlawful. It tossed the problem back to a lower court.

This only postponed the day of decision. The problem will eventually come back to the high court for a final answer, which may be given late in 1956 or sometime in 1957.

But the pattern was not quite consistent in the fields of civil liberties, states' rights, and the powers of the federal government.

The court ruled the government must have "good cause" for trying to deprive a man of citizenship through denaturalization proceedings. And it knocked a hole in President Eisenhower's program for getting "security risks" out of government jobs. It decided the program can't apply to work in non-sensitive jobs.

But it upheld the 1954 immunity law. This law says a man can't escape testifying before a federal grand jury or in court by pleading the Fifth Amendment's protection against self-incrimination if, in order to learn what he knows, the government promises him immunity from prosecution for anything he says.

The court ruled a New York public school teacher could not be fired simply because he pleaded the Fifth Amendment when asked questions about Communist party membership. States' rights looked on this as an intrusion on states' rights.

But the court refused to hear the plea of a California public school teacher who was fired for not answering a couple of questions about Communist membership. The questions were described as "relevant to his fitness for public employment."

And the court upheld the right of a private firm in California to fire a woman for "just cause" on grounds she was a Communist.

The decision which brought the loudest protests from states' rights was the court's ruling that sedition against the United States can be prosecuted only in federal courts, although about 42 states have some kind of sedition laws.

The Supreme Court also said a state court can't stop peaceful picketing by a labor union whose officials refuse to comply with the

Boy's Body Washes Up In Lake Erie

CLEVELAND — Since last Wednesday, when he left home for a playground, 8-year-old John Dale Mower had been missing.

And then Sunday afternoon a long search came to an end.

A small body was spotted in the waters of Lake Erie, about 500 feet off the Lake Shore Country Club.

Members of the Coast Guard were summoned by the boaters who made the discovery.

A short while later, at the Coast Guard station in Cleveland Harbor, the boy's stepfather, Ted Haake, 26, knew in a glance the body was that of Johnny. He recognized the black shoes, with zippers, which the boy had been wearing when he started for Sowinski playground on the east side. The lad's blue jeans were on the body, but a knit shirt was missing.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Virginia Haake, 32, sobbed, "I can't believe he's dead." She was not permitted to see the body until it was taken to the county morgue.

Later, the boy's father, John D. Mower, 33, confirmed the identification at the morgue.

The body bore no marks of violence, said homicide chief David E. Kerr.

Dr. Samuel R. Gerber, Cuyahoga County coroner, planned a full examination to determine whether drowning was the cause of the boy's death.

Police said the boy could have fallen into Doan Creek, near his home, which later was flooded by heavy rains. The creek empties into the lake.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am eldest of eight children. I am a high school girl in my sophomore year, and I plan to take up psychology, in the field of social work, eventually.

But how can I hope to succeed, when I am constantly hurting the people I love most? Not only my family, but others too. I am not very popular due to this, as you can imagine.

To give an example, a friend wanted my 9-year-old sister Ann to stay at her house for the evening; and I said right out that Ann couldn't come until she learns to do her duties at home. I also pointed out that it had taken Ann an hour and a half to get ready for school that morning. Ann started to cry, and after her friend had gone, I apologized; but it was too late then. The harm was done.

I still can't carry on a conversation with many of the nicer girls and boys at school, because of the damage unwittingly done to my self-esteem.

I want and need good friends, but can't trust my own judgment in choosing words anymore, nor in keeping quiet. I'd hate to discuss this with my pastor, or teacher, or anyone who knows me.

D. R.

DEAR D. R.: Back of this smokescreen of miscellaneous comment about yourself, you are wrestling with a bad conscience about your jealous badgering of your little sister Ann. I take it.

Apparently this has become a habit with you, and you are guiltily aware that it is "wearing her down," as the saying goes. That it is fraying her nerves, and driving a wedge between her and the fond friendships (and situational successes) she might have, if you'd allow her a fair chance.

Why are you jealous of Ann? As I get the drift, it is because she has an offhand talent for friendship that you lack; a lovable quality that you envy in her. In her, you see the person you'd like to be like; and you are being compulsively cruel and spiteful to her, as a blind expression of jealous unhappiness. You strike out, to take the joy out of life for her, because you felt so miserable at her age, (and still feel wretchedly out of tune).

You are a chronic sufferer from anxious tension; and your personality needs basic love nurture, or sympathetic acceptance from a protective counselor, much as a parched plant needs plentiful watering. Although you speak well of your parents, it's probable they've lacked time or spirit to love you sufficiently in this sense. Also, they may feel somehow inferior to families they admire—thus communicating a stream of uneasiness to you.

My advice is, be a brave girl, and discuss your hopes and accumulated heartaches with your pastor or a congenial teacher—using this article to break the ice.

Hamiltonian Named By Amvets

MANSFIELD, Ohio — Ohio Amvets Sunday elected a new state commander. He is Edgar Williams of Hamilton.

Others elected at the Amvets' 11th annual convention here included vice commanders Roland Cronk, Sandusky, and Herbert Pofahl, Cuyahoga Falls; and finance officer William Cummings of Massillon.

The convention adopted a resolution calling for further study of the proposed veterans' benefit bill now before Congress.

About 500 Amvets from 73 Ohio posts attended the two-day meeting.

Highway Expert Stays Off Roads

SANDUSKY, Ohio — Because "the highways are too crowded," Rep. George H. Fallon (D-Md), author of a current bill for federal highway aid, says he doesn't do much driving.

Fallon, who will participate today in the 50th annual meeting of the Ohio State Automobile Assn. at Cedar Point, said, "I have a car two years old and it has 9,000 miles on it. Driving is no longer a pleasure."

The legislator introduced the House version of a bill authorizing more than 24 billion dollars in federal aid to be used in a 13-year program for highway improvement.

Ex-Slugger Names Horses After Yanks

COLUMBUS — Although he's transferred his active sports interest from baseball to harness racing, Charlie (King Kong) Keller, former New York Yankee outfielder, plans to maintain at least a nominal link with the national pastime.

In recognition of the many years he spent patrolling the Yankee Stadium outfield in company with Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich, Keller has named his modest breeding farm, "Yankee Land Farm," and will attach the prefix "Yankee" to all trotters and pacers which are raised there.

The first two "Yankies," a colt and a filly, were registered this week by the U. S. Trotting Association, parent body of the sport, which also approved the farm name.

Keller's first arrival was a son of Meadow Pace-Isabel Star and it will answer to the name Yankee Star. The second foal was a filly by Direct Rhythm from Meadow Meda and has been named Yankee Queen.

Keller, who retired from baseball several years ago after a spectacular American League career, became interested in harness racing while watching trainer Joe Eyer condition his stock at Frederick Fairgrounds. He met Eyer and later helped him train some horses.

Last fall, upon the advice of Del Miller, one of the sport's leading figures, Keller purchased the mares Isabel Star and Meadow Meda, the latter from Miller himself. He plans to buy additional mares but will keep his horse breeding operation at a moderate level.

The former Yankee slugger says he has no plans for racing any of his own stock, preferring to sell his yearlings at auction. He qualifies that by reserving the right to race an occasional filly which he may want to retain for breeding purposes.

Needles Heads For Jersey Track

NEW YORK (AP) — Needles, the Florida colt who gives trainer Hugh Fountaine a case of nerves every time he steps on a race track, heads for Monmouth park in New Jersey tomorrow with the Belmont Stakes and the 3-year-old championship safely stowed away.

Needles threw his famous late punch in the final half mile of the mile and one-half Belmont Saturday, overpowering the Calumet Farm's Fabius in the stretch, then holding off the equally tardy charge of C. V. Whitney's Career Boy. For almost the first mile, Needles ran last in the field of eight 3-year-olds.

Europeans Sweep Equestrian Tests

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Europeans swept the board in the equestrian Olympics because of a flood of top-class competitors.

Sweden, the host country, won three gold medals in the eight-day Olympics which ended yesterday. Germany took two on the final day and Britain won one.

Horse shows are a major sport in this part of the world and top riders are eager to get on the international teams. In the United States, there are only a few important shows.

2 Top Harness Race Chieftains Resign

VERNON, N. Y. (AP) — Vernon Downs harness race track has announced the resignation of two officials in what was believed to be a brewing dispute with George P. Monaghan, state harness racing commissioner.

Octave Blake, president of South Plainfield, N. J., and T. Proctor Eldred of Utica, executive vice president, resigned after a series of weekend meetings of Vernon Downs directors.

Melvin C. Eaton of Norwich, president of the Norwich Pharmaceutical Co., succeeds Blake.

OHIO OUTDOORS

from THE OHIO DIVISION OF WILDLIFE

A total of 120 deer have been reported accidentally killed in Ohio during the first three months of 1956. The accidental kill for the corresponding period in 1955 was 123 deer. This is a decrease of 2.4 percent for this year.

The accidental kill is approximately the same for all wildlife districts in 1956 as in 1955, except in District 5. Here an increase from eight to 13 deer, or about 63 percent occurred.

According to the figures compiled by the game section, the accidental deer kill is at about the same level in the spring of 1956 as for the same period in 1955, despite a legal kill of about 4,200 deer and a reported accidental kill of almost 800 deer.

As has been true during the past few years, Wildlife District 3, in northeastern Ohio, has had the greatest number of accidentally killed deer (68), followed by Wildlife District 4, southeastern

Ohio with 35; Wildlife District 5, central Ohio, with 13; and Wildlife District 2, northwestern Ohio with 4.

No accidentally killed deer were reported from District 6 in south-quarter.

According to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, farm ponds smaller than a half acre rarely furnish good fishing, but ponds of from one to three acres are ideal for the average family and friends.

At the present time there are more than one-and-one-half million farm ponds averaging an acre in size in the United States and this number is increasing at the rate of 100,000 ponds annually.

In 24 states the laws and policies prohibit stocking of farm ponds with fish produced in the state hatcheries. As a result the Fish and Wildlife Service each year provides more than 30 million fish, mainly warm water species, for approximately 25,000 non-commercial ponds in 42 states.

During the first four and one-half months in 1956, the fish section of the Ohio Division of Wildlife, has approved approximately 1,000 applications for federal fish to be stocked in newly-constructed farm ponds. The federal fish hatchery at Hebron furnishes the fish for newly-constructed farm ponds, after the application has been approved by the Ohio Division of Wildlife.

According to a recent survey, it is estimated that there are approximately 14,000 farm ponds in Ohio of which about 10,000 provide some fishing, the remainder being constructed principally as a source of immediately available water for cattle and fire protection.

Middlecoff Matures, Is Rated 'Great'

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Maturity has made Cary Middlecoff a great golfer.

Like Ben Hogan, physical condition may keep him from becoming the greatest.

When he won his second National Open championship Saturday, posting a 81 total for 71 holes and then sweating it out in the locker room while Hogan, Julius Boros, Ted Kroll and a few others charged at him and dropped back, Middlecoff proved that he is the one golfer to beat in any tournament at this time.

The tall, now-slightly-paunchy retired dentist from Memphis, Tenn., is 35. He has been rated among the leading golf professionals ever since he won his first Open as a sophomore pro in 1949.

Until the last year or so, temperament and jittery nerves have kept him from establishing his greatness. He was the kind of player who was on top of the world — affable, friendly and humorous — when he was winning and ready to bite your ears off if a few putts didn't drop.

Golf is a $50,000-a-year business for Middlecoff, but at a time when he should be collecting, he has become a parttime player.

In the Open, Hogan and Boros tied for second with 282. Kroll had a 285 total.

In their first 1956 series against the Yankees, the Boston Red Sox pitchers permitted 34 runs in three games.

Redleg Lineup Starting To Feel Shakeup

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manager Birdie Tebbetts of the Cincinnati Reds has started some lineup changes to try shaking the team out of a hitting slump.

He benched third-sacker Ray Jablonski in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader with New York, replacing him with Jim Dyck.

Jabbs' hitting spearheaded the Reds' rise early in the season after a rocky start, but his work at the plate has been progressively less effective recently.

And Wally Post was put on the bench Saturday, his right field job taken by Bob Thurman. He returned to the lineup in yesterday's second game against the Giants, but got only one single.

There was little similarity between the two games, except that they were both won on one-run margins.

The Giants took the opener, 7-6, after a free-hitting contest which had six homers, four by New York, and in which five pitchers saw action, three of them Redlegs.

But the Reds came back to win the second game, 1-0, in a tight pitchers' duel in which Joe Nuxhall brought Cincinnati its first shutout this season.

The split of two games allowed the Reds to climb back into second place in the National League, just behind Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati turns in at Philadelphia tonight for the first of three games with the Phillies. Hal Jeffcoat is slated to oppose Harvey Haddix.

Only 8 Of Browns Still Unsigned

CLEVELAND (AP) — All but eight of the Cleveland Browns who played on last year's national football championship club have signed up for the 1956 season a month before training opens.

The eight include two who aren't coming back — quarterback Otto Graham and halfback Dub Jones, who have announced retirement. Of the remaining six, Dante Lavelli is considering retirement.

Unless Lavelli returns, only Frank Gatski and tackle Lou Groza will be left from the original Cleveland Browns' club of 1946.

Rory Calhoun Set For Big-Time Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Rory Calhoun crashes the big time Friday when he gets his first Madison Square

Garden main event against Willie Vaughn of Hollywood, Calif., in a bid for rating among the top 10 middleweights.

Unbeaten in his 21-bout career, the 21-year-old White Plains, N. Y., slugger has been moving up fast in the last six months. Vaughn, 23, is the California state champ but has been inactive this year.

Coach Terry Brennan of Notre Dame was the leading ground gainer in the Irish scoreless tie against Army in 1946.

Farmer Bruised, Not Knocked Out, Expert On Business Reports

(Editor's Note: Sam Dawson, business reporter for the Associated Press, is making a coast-to-coast trip checking up on business conditions in vital areas. Today, he reports from the heart of the agricultural belt.

By SAM DAWSON
DES MOINES — Don't give the farmer a short count. He may be bruised but he isn't knocked out.

But you can't whack 15 per cent or so off the farmer's one-time income without Iowa and the rest of the Midwest hurting—in spite of diversification since the end of the war.

"The good farm operator isn't crying and hasn't cried," says a country banker in daily touch with the farmers. "In the big years after the war he took his grain and he took care of it. The poor operators got the grain too, but some of them didn't take care of it. Now the marginal farmers are crying hard."

Some call this judgment harsh. However, drought and slumping farm product prices have hit hard and broadly. And although many a farmer is hurting, it's chiefly the marginal one.

The farmer is still the big wheel in the economy of Iowa and the Midwest, even if the wheel has a smaller diameter than it used to. Since 1950, the dollar volume of Iowa's manufacturing output has topped that of agriculture and that takes in good years and bad.

But when the farmer's income drops, trade feels it. The effect can be pinpointed by store sales. Younkers, largest Des Moines department store, has had a drop in sales, which officials attribute mostly to the drop in farm income, chiefly when the price of hogs slid down last year. But Younkers' store in Sioux City has had a much larger drop percentage.

Why? Younkers officials explain it this way: "Sioux City's purchasing area draws largely from farm income. Des Moines, on the other hand, has other income—manufacturing plants, insurance companies' pay-rolls.

Over-all, in Younkers' eight Iowa stores the drop in sales volume due to farm troubles could be five to seven per cent, the store officials estimate.

"Cut a farmer's income as it has been cut and he stops buying," a store spokesman says. "And just a few percentage marks off our sales volume means a lot in the retail business in this day of rising costs of operation."

Is it lack of money or lack of confidence that has stopped farm buying? Businessmen and bankers here believe it's both. Some farmers don't have any money to spend. Some have reserves but are cautious.

"A 10 to 15 per cent cut in the 10-year average income will stop a farmer from buying," says Don E. Edison, executive secretary of a cooperative, the Farmers Grain Dealers Assn. of Iowa.

Like many others, he believes that the farmers who were really hurt by the setback of recent months were the postwar farmers who bought land at peak prices and lots of machinery on time.

Kefauver Confession Seen Ending 'Feud' With Adl.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Estes Kefauver and Adlai Stevenson apparently were on the way today toward patching up differences arising from their rivalry for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In the Republican camp there still was no sign of any immediate authoritative announcement on President Eisenhower's political plans in the light of his latest illness.

The Kefauver-Stevenson reconciliation began with a frank admission yesterday from Kefauver that he erred in conducting a "personal" type campaign against Stevenson in latter stages of the Florida and California primary fights both won by Stevenson.

"I got mad, lost my head," Kefauver said. "In the heat of the campaign you sometimes say things you wouldn't say if you thought them over."

In Chicago, Stevenson said Kefauver's remarks would do much to restore unity to the Democratic party. He said he wired Kefauver that he was pleased.

BUT KEFAUVER also reaffirmed that he has no intention of withdrawing from the race for the nomination despite his close defeat in the key Florida primary and a crushing loss in the equally important California primary.

He said also he would take no part in any "behind the scene" maneuvering to throw his support to another candidate if he is unable to win the nomination.

Republicans wondering if Eisenhower will reconsider his earlier decision to run again after recovering from his Sept. 24 heart attack got no help yesterday from James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary.

Hagerty said the President "has given me no indication" of his present intentions as a result of the intestinal surgery he underwent 10 days ago.

Hagerty said also, "I don't think the American people will elect a sick man at all, but I don't think the President is sick."

Hagerty said Eisenhower is completely recovered from his heart attack, and the recent surgery could be compared to operations performed on Stevenson, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Sen. Symington of Missouri and other Democratic presidential possibilities.

Stevenson, meanwhile, said "I think I am the man to beat" for the Democratic nomination. He said he expects to go to the national convention in Chicago Aug. 13 with 500 delegate votes behind him. It takes 686 for nomination.

Retired Engineers Urged As Teachers

CLEVELAND — Temporary teaching jobs for retired engineers, and part-time teaching jobs for active engineers, could help solve the shortage of instructors in that field, says Joseph W. Barker of New York.

He is president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which today opened a series of technical sessions.

Barker said that if school boards would throw out the red tape over hiring, pensions, and other personnel rules, they could get some good engineering instructors among men who have retired from industry.

Boys Club Sends Ike New Bicycle

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Orlando Boys Club sent President Eisenhower a bicycle yesterday and urged him to take up biking as advised by his heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White.

The club said in a telegram it "wishes to contribute to your speedy recovery in the hope your health will permit you to accept our invitation" to attend the national amateur bicycle races here July 14-15.

HST Hopes Oxford Goes Easy On Latin

LONDON — Harry S. Truman jokingly said today he just won't get that honorary degree from Oxford University if he has to accept it in Latin.

"I had only a schoolboy's education," he explained on his arrival in Britain today. "The Latin I included I don't remember."

The ancient British university will give him an honorary doctorate of law Wednesday.

Truman and his wife came by steamer from the Netherlands for a 10-day visit during which they also will be received by Queen Elizabeth II and entertained by Prime Minister Eden and Sir Winston Churchill.

Buckeye Girls' State Awaits 'Election Day'

COLUMBUS — Party chairmen have been chosen in preparation for tomorrow's elections at Buckeye Girls' State.

The 636 young Ohio women, all entering their senior year in high school, are trying to learn as much about governmental activities as they can in their limited eight-day gathering on the Capital University campus.

Vera Minkes of Columbus and Ann Glick of Shelby were selected yesterday to head the Nationalist and Federalist parties, respectively—two fictitious political groups within which the girls choose candidates for statewide, county and city offices.

Besides being arbitrarily assigned to one of the two parties, delegates to the state are also given residence in 14 mythical counties.

On election day tomorrow, candidates for governor, the Legislature and judicial posts will be voted on.

The governor, whoever she may be, will be honored at an inaugural banquet Wednesday. Two bona fide Ohio officials, Gov. Frank J. Lausche and Chief Justice Carl V. Weyandt of the Ohio Supreme Court, are among several dignitaries who will address the banquet.

At the opening session of Girls' State, delegates received instructions on the formation of political parties.

University Student Kills His Son, 7

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Police said a Japanese-Hawaiian student at Michigan State University beat his 7-year-old son to death in their campus barracks apartment last night because the child "put up a fuss."

State Police Sgt. Steve Naert quoted Kinney Tamaribuchi, 27, as saying he "lost his head" when he spanked the boy, Kent. Tamaribuchi said he beat the child with a wooden mallet and a tennis racket and then pummeled him with his fists. Mrs. Tamaribuchi was visiting friends in Chicago.

Troops Closing Trap On Rebel Chief On Cyprus As Blaze Flares

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Nineteen British soldiers, engaged in a manhunt for Greek Cypriot rebel chiefs in the Troodos Mountains, were trapped by a forest fire yesterday and lost their lives.

Eighteen others were injured, some of them seriously, when a sudden shift of wind blew the fire at the troops. Many servicemen were injured when the blaze caught their vehicles and the fuel tanks blew up.

The injured were evacuated from the area by helicopter.

About 2,000 British troops had been engaged in an extensive operation in the area for several days, seeking to close in on George Grivas, the former Greek army colonel the British say leads the terrorist rebel organization EOKA under the name of "Dighenis."

The British believed they were about to close the net on Grivas and 10 other EOKA leaders who want union with Greece when a forest fire broke out in the sun-baked ridges.

THE BRITISH, fearing local villagers would help the rebels escape through the cordon of troops, told the local people that their help was not needed in fighting the flames.

The troops, however, were inexperienced fire fighters and the blaze got out of hand and spread quickly over a broad area of brush and scrub pine. It was brought under control today.

The cause of the fire was not determined. It has been suspected that the rebels have set some previous fires, but the British also have been accused of starting some through mortar fire and carelessness of troops.

British intelligence authorities said they had built up a good file of information on "Dighenis" from captured EOKA men.

The captives, nearly all young men in their late teens or early 20s, stress the iron discipline imposed by "Dighenis." They said he did not hesitate to shoot past the ears of any of his men who did not obey quickly.

The British said they had captured orders in his handwriting saying "Only I will issue orders as to whom is to be assassinated. Anyone disobeying me will be executed."

The rebel campaign resulted in the first death of an American Saturday night. U. S. Vice Consul William P. Boteler, 26, of Washington, D. C. was killed by two bombs tossed into a restaurant in Nicosia. Five other Americans, radio employees of the U. S. State Department, were seated with him. Three were injured.

Cyprus Case Angers U.S.

Bomb Death Of Envoy Labeled As 'Senseless'

WASHINGTON — The United States, in sharp reaction to the bomb death of an American in Nicosia, today denounced violence on Cyprus "as a blind and senseless course."

State Department press officer Lincoln White read to newsmen an official statement on the death of William P. Boteler, vice consul at Nicosia, who was killed in a bombing Saturday. Three other Americans were injured.

"Mr. Boteler's death does not bring the Cyprus problem one step closer to solution. It only adds to the already considerable cost in human life which has been exacted by violence on the island of Cyprus," the statement said.

The statement seemed to be directed at both the British and Greek officials concerned with the bitter struggle over the future of the Mediterranean island.

White said a protest was planned to be made by the U. S. government only to the British.

Valued Pacer Times Square Felled By Bolt

WASHINGTON, C. H. — Harness racing enthusiasts in this city had their fingers crossed today over the health of Time's Square, one of the top-ranking pacers of the nation.

McKinley Kirk, trainer-driver of the five-year-old pacer who has a record for the mile of 1:58.1, said the horse was knocked down and stunned by a bolt of lightning Saturday at Grandview Oval, near Cleveland.

Kirk, an assistant, Seymour Campbell, and five two-year-old horses in Kirk's string, also were stunned by the bolt.

Kirk reported that Time's Square's head was scuffed, but that "only time will tell whether there was permanent injury."

Kirk said that the six horses were in a Grandview stable when the bolt pierced the building. There was no fire.

Kirk had been sitting on a truck outside the barn while Campbell lolled in a chair near the barn door. Kirk returned to his home here over the weekend. Time's Square is owned by Kirk's nephew, Eddie Kirk.

Teenage Driving Champions Named

CLEVELAND — Driving skill demonstrated in Ohio's teenage Road-E-O in Euclid Saturday won $1,000 scholarships for Sidney Van Court of Andover and Wanda Heck of East Palestine.

Van Court, who will represent Ohio in the national Road-E-O in Washington Aug. 6-9, scored 538 out of a possible 565 and was perfect in the road test. Wanda topped the girls with 413 points.

The tests, sponsored by the Ohio Trucking Assn., Standard Oil Co. of Ohio and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, were given to 140 youngsters, all survivors of local preliminary competition.

'Golden Age' Of Fitness Seen For Youth In U.S.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The President's conference on Fitness of American Youth was told today the nation may be approaching a "golden age of fitness" in which each individual will take pride in his own physical, mental and spiritual growth.

With Vice President Nixon presiding in the place of the convalescing President Eisenhower, who called the conference, the two-day workshop opened today at the Naval Academy. About 150 were on hand.

Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, sounded the keynote with his vision of a golden age of fitness.

One of the chief aims of the conference is to explore how the federal government can assist organizations already engaged in physical fitness work for youths.

Highway Parley Slated In Logan

COLUMBUS — Ohio Highway Director S. O. Linzell said today a hearing will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday in Hocking County Courthouse, Logan, to consider further improvements of U. S. 33 between Columbus and Athens.

The highway department proposes to relocate and establish limited access on 3½ miles of the highway, beginning a mile northwest of the intersection of Ohio 595 in Hocking County and rejoining U. S. 33 after bypassing the village of Haydenville.

Steel Union Policy Chiefs Study Breakdown In Parley

NEW YORK — The 170-member Wage Policy Committee of the United Steelworkers of America meets today to consider the breakdown in the union's joint contract negotiations with the Big Three steel firms.

The breakdown in the talks developed after the policy group rejected contract proposals offered by the Big Three — U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic.

Union President David McDonald said yesterday the joint talks, first ever held in the basic steel industry, had "gotten nowhere" and that the union would return to its former procedure of negotiating with steel firms individually.

McDonald and U. S. Steel Vice President John A. Stephens said, however, that the decision to hold talks with 11 individual steel companies did not mean the Big Three negotiations were dissolved.

"We shall be in communication with each other," said McDonald, after a 90-minute meeting yesterday ended in a stalemate.

BOTH SIDES said the situation has not altered since the union rejected Big Three's offer of a five-year contract. This called for package wage and fringe benefits which the companies said amounted to about 65 cents an hour over the length of the contract.

The companies said this would mean 17½ cents the first year, but the union said the take-home pay would be "about a nickel." Present wages for 650,000 steelworkers average $2.48 an hour.

McDonald termed it "too little and too late" and made plans to begin individual negotiations with the Big Three companies and with Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown, Inland, Great Lakes, Wheeling, Allegheny-Ludlum, Pittsburgh and Armco.

Failure to reach agreement by June 30 when present contracts expire could lead to a strike in the pivotal industry.

In the past the union has negotiated separately with each of the companies, but its contract with U. S. Steel usually set the pattern for the entire industry.

Stephens said the union had requested the joint talks in hopes of finding a more efficient method of negotiating a contract. He said he saw nothing unusual in the union's return to individual bargaining. It remains to be seen, he added, which method is better.

Bolivia Names Siles Zuazo As New Chief

LA PAZ — Energetic Vice President Hernan Siles Zuazo has been elected president of Bolivia, to the surprise of no one and with less than 20 per cent of the nationwide election vote counted.

His victory in yesterday's voting promised a reorganization in the country's rich government-operated tin mines and distribution of more farmlands to landless, impoverished peasants.

Siles Zuazo, leader of the 1952 revolution which put his National Revolutionary Movement (MNR) and exiled President Victor Paz Estenssoro in power, termed the election "the first real democratic experience in Bolivia."

The MNR has a powerful extreme left faction, but the 42-year-old Siles Zuazo is a moderate. He counts on continued aid from the United States, which is now giving $20 million a year to help in the government's battle against serious inflation.

Although the bulk of the estimated 800,000 votes were still to be reported, returns trickling in from the populous interior assured the MNR leader victory over his chief opponent, Oscar Ungaza de la Vega of the Socialist Falange party.

Ungaza had conceded defeat before the election and withdrawn unofficially.

Chief To Tell When And If, Veep Believes

Doctors Say 7 Pounds Lost By President As Result Of Operation

WASHINGTON — Vice President Nixon conferred with President Eisenhower at Walter Reed Hospital today but reported there was absolutely no discussion of whether Eisenhower intends to remain in the presidential race.

Nixon told a news conference after the visit that Eisenhower will "speak for himself" in answer to the big question when he feels the time is right.

Asked whether there was any discussion whatever of politics at his meeting with the President, Nixon replied:

"The answer is no. That is categorical without any qualification." Eisenhower himself, Nixon went on, will "select the time and place" for discussion of his political future.

The vice president added that he has "great confidence" the President "will weigh all the factors concerned and make the proper decision."

Nixon noted that on Feb. 29 Eisenhower announced he was willing to run for a second term.

NIXON SAID HE believes that until the President announces any change in his plans, "the rest of us" should not discuss the situation.

Nixon went on to say that "our primary interest at this time" is to help bring about Eisenhower's complete recovery.

Nixon was asked then whether he got the impression that Eisenhower is "a man ready to run again."

Nixon replied that the President himself is the man to answer that question.

Eisenhower, he said, is familiar with the burdens of the presidency, and "he is the man who should speak" eventually.

Nixon reported that Eisenhower "looked thinner" to him, and noted an announcement that the President weighs seven pounds less than when he entered the hospital.

Press Secretary James Hagerty said the doctors told him the loss in weight is considered normal in the wake of an operation such as the President had.

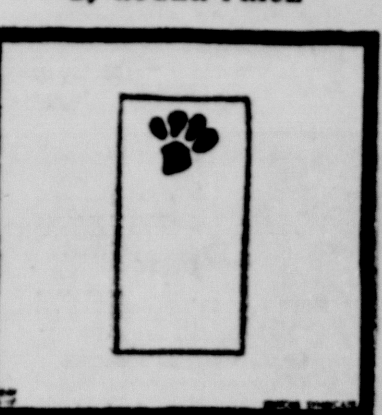

Hagerty said the physicians noted that for several days after surgery Eisenhower was fed nothing but glucose and water intravenously, and that he had nothing but liquids by mouth for a few days. He got his first soft food last Saturday.

After the conference with Nixon and a short one with Secretary of State Dulles, the President spent

'ENDORSEMENT ON RIN TIN TIN'S PAY CHECK'

Rin Tin Tin has always been my idea of a really talented Hollywood Celebrity. He's as good an actor as Tab Hunter; he has better diction than Tony Curtis and more hair than Gary Cooper. But when it comes to behaving off screen like a Hollywood star he's a real Square. I don't think he's ever been married or divorced even once. And you never hear about him getting into a brawl at Ciro's and punching Flicka or Lassie in the nose, and I happen to know that he doesn't have a swimming pool or even a Psychiatrist. Of course he makes an awful lot of money acting, but what good is it all doing him? As far as I can see he still leads a dog's life.

Robert Moyer Leaving Job At Jackson School

Pickaway County Superintendent of Schools George McDowell has announced that Robert (Bob) Moyer, superintendent at Jackson Township School for the past six years, will soon take over new duties at Kingston-Union School in Ross County.

"Mr. Moyer has certainly done good work at Jackson and we're sorry to see him leave," McDowell said. "But it's a matter of a considerable increase in salary. We wish him well."

Moyer will continue to live in Circleville while handling his new post, which he officially takes over on July 1.

McDowell said 25 vacancies still exist as the county school system prepares to line up its teacher roster for the fall term. He emphasized, however, that he does not consider the overall picture unusual for this time of year.

"Almost every week," he pointed out, "we get notices of resignations, but we also get notices of acceptance by new teachers along with them. They come and go."

Hospitals Report On 3 Patients

Grant Hospital in Columbus today reported the condition of Miss Mildred Heffner, 36, of Circleville, as "fairly good." Miss Heffner was injured over a week ago in an automobile collision at Franklin and Pickaway streets.

Anna Church, 14, injured in another local accident, was reported in "satisfactory" condition at University Hospital.

William Paul Akers, age seven months, remained in "good" condition at Children's Hospital. The child was injured in an accident in which a Laurelville Route 1 woman was fatally hurt.

Motorist, 2 On Motorcycle Hurt In Pair Of Weekend Accidents

Injuries were reported in two of the accidents investigated by the Pickaway County Sheriff's department over the weekend. Both occurred Sunday.

At about 1 a. m. Sunday, Thomas L. Hess, 19, of 291 Mill St., Chillicothe, suffered a laceration of the forehead and a sprained arm when the car he was driving crashed into construction work equipment on Route 23. Scene of the accident is south of Circleville near the highway's intersection with Miller Road.

Deputy Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and Special Deputy R. V. Diltz, who administered first aid to Hess, said he told them he apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Construction work is under way in the vicinity, and the car crashed into a detour sign and a cement-finishing machine. Hess, who was driving north at the time, told deputies his car was going about 35 or 40 miles an hour.

The front end of the automobile was damaged considerably.

THE OTHER accident occurred about 2:40 p. m. Sunday on State Route 56 near the intersection of Dawson Pike.

A motorcycle driven by Paul W. Heller, 48, of 488 Siebert St., Columbus, went off the rain-soaked highway, causing injuries to Heller and a passenger with him, Lillian Heller, 38.

Both were treated at Berger Hospital. Heller suffered abrasions of the body, legs and arms, while his passenger was treated for contusions of the head and abrasions of the left knee, elbow and shoulder.

The front of the cycle was damaged. Deputy Sheriff Carl White reported that Heller said he lost control of the motorcycle while glancing at a truck approaching behind him.

Storms Lash Nation Over Weekend

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Thunderstorms, heavy rain, hail and isolated tornadoes combined with generally warm and humid temperatures today to give the nation a variety of weather.

Twisters skipped around open country in the Texas Panhandle and South Plains region last night. A few farm sheds were blown down, but no other damage was reported.

Thunderstorms rumbled today over an area extending from the Western Plains, the mid-Mississippi River Valley and Great Lakes region to the central Atlantic coast.

Heavy rains in northeast Colorado caused flash floods. U. S. Highway 85 north of Greeley was closed and bridges on county roads in the area were washed out.

Hail blanketed a 52-mile stretch from Greeley to Grover, Colo., near the Wyoming border.

Isolated heavy showers continued to drench already soaked areas of southern Nebraska and northern Kansas, where Frenchman Creek overflowed Saturday into Wauwata, Neb.

The creek was reported back in its banks today. The 2-inch downburst that sent the creek into Wauwata forced an evacuation of more than 30 families from flooded homes. Damage estimates ranged around a quarter of a million dollars.

State Distributing Gas, Liquor Funds
Local governments throughout Ohio are sharing in a distribution of more than $6.5 million in gasoline tax funds and liquor permit fees being made by State Auditor James A. Rhodes before the end of the state's fiscal year on June 30.

The gasoline tax distribution amounts to $4,859,807 and the liquor permit distribution, $1,651,858.53.

Cities and villages are getting $2,566,207 in gasoline tax money on the basis of $1 for each registered motor vehicle in the municipality.

Each county is receiving $20,000 for county roads, and each of 1,334 townships in Ohio is getting $400 for township roads.

THE FINAL distribution of gasoline tax funds makes a total of $47,556,960 returned by the state to municipalities, counties and townships during the current fiscal year. During the preceding fiscal year they received $45,437,321 from the gas tax.

Cities and villages received $20,352,160 this year from the gas tax; counties, $17,600,000; townships, $9,604,800.

The fourth-quarter distribution of liquor permit fees makes a total of $7,474,918.69 returned to "wet" cities, villages and townships during the current fiscal year. The total for the preceding year was $7,323,160.37.

CEDAR POINT
COLUMBUS (U.P.)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche today advocated state acquisition for a public beach of Lake Erie's Cedar Point by condemnation if necessary.

The governor indicated he might ask next week's special session of the Legislature for authority to appropriate the amusement park near Sandusky if owners insist on plans to sell to land developers.

Lausche said he planned to ask the session meeting June 28 to correct an error in a law passed by the last Legislature so the state can sell canal land to St. Bernard, Cincinnati suburb. He said the land was needed for the Mill Creek Expressway in Hamilton County. The error appeared in a description of the land in a deed.

Lausche called the special session to reenact substitute taxes on banks and financial institutions knocked out by U. S. and State Supreme Court decisions. Revenues approximating $10 million collected by the state for local governments would be lost unless the legislature acts.

The governor has indicated he would expand the special session call to lift a ban against sale of water by municipalities to consumers more than five miles from the city limits. He said the action was necessary so Youngstown

He said the Communist states "hold down and exploit their workers for the benefit of a gang of despotic state bureaucrats."

TEL AVIV, Israel (U.P.)—A tougher Israeli policy toward the Arab nations appeared shaping up today after Moshe Sharett's announcement he is quitting as foreign minister.

Sharett, who had held the post ever since Israel was founded in 1948, told the Political Committee of his Mpaai (Democratic Labor) party he no longer could continue "under present circumstances."

He said he would submit his resignation to a special Cabinet meeting today.

Sharett's departure from office followed a widening policy split with Premier David Ben-Gurion, his long-time associate in the Zionist movement and the Mpaai chief. Sharett advocated caution in dealing with Israel's Arab neighbors, while Ben-Gurion insisted on a policy of "active defense" against Arab border violators.

The Mpaai committee named Mrs. Golda Myerson, labor minister since 1949 and a former Milwaukee schoolteacher, to succeed Sharett. Mordechai Namir, general secretary of the labor federation, was picked for the Labor Ministry.

Mrs. Myerson said she would consider her new appointment only temporary. She has acted several times as foreign minister during Sharett's absences from the country.

Drive Launched To Give Bender Needed Boost

GOP Leaders Admit Some Republicans Lukewarm On Senator

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Republicans with lukewarm feelings toward U.S. Sen. George H. Bender may find it hard to vote in November for a rival who may like Ike.

A drive is on to convince independent-minded voters that President Eisenhower, in anticipation of a second term, wants a Republican-controlled Congress.

The campaign apparently accepts claims that Democrat Gov. Frank J. Lausche, Bender's opponent for senator, gained five terms with the aid of nominally Republican voters.

Republican leaders insist that Lausche, if elected, would vote Senate next year regardless of any admiration for Eisenhower. They assert Lausche always stands with his party "when the chips are down."

"The chips will be down when the next Senate organizes," said Fred J. Milligan of Columbus, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Republican Senatorial Finance Committee.

The attorney reiterated speculation that Bender's vote might determine whether Republicans named the chairman and a majority of Senate committee members next year to handle Eisenhower's legislative program.

Democrats now hold narrow control in both Houses of Congress.

Milligan was a leader in the Ohio Citizens for Eisenhower movement four years ago. He also was active in the successful 1946 Republican campaign when Thomas J. Herbert beat Lausche for governor, although Lausche came back to win his second term against Herbert in 1948.

Last year Milligan played a major role in the successful drive against a CIO-initiated proposal for big unemployment benefits and supplemental layoff pay. Voters swamped the proposal at the polls.

"We now are organizing Bender-for-Senate committees," Milligan reported. "We are finding that a considerable number of people who were active in the Eisenhower Committee in 1952 will help us."

Milligan speculated that some of the offers to help apparently stemmed from Adlai E. Stevenson's emergence as the current front-runner for the Democratic renomination for President.

He said some Eisenhower backers, who also liked Lausche, resented the governor's endorsement of Stevenson late in the 1952 campaign.

Of that endorsement, Milligan said he expected to find Lausche in the Stevenson camp if the former Illinois governor again wins the Democratic nomination.

He said it follows that such a development would make Lausche unacceptable to Eisenhower backers this year. The result, he explained, would cost the Democratic governor some of the Republican support he needs to become a senator.

Lausche was friendly to Stevenson during the 1952 campaign. But Milligan said it was not until a few days before the election that the governor's appearance with Stevenson at a meeting in Cleveland produced strong reaction among some Ohio Eisenhower backers. The situation developed so late in the campaign that the significance escaped notice in many sections, Milligan asserted.

This year, he said, Eisenhower followers and others will be forewarned.

There is no record of a salmon having been caught in the River Thames in England since 1933.

New "Saucer" Book Places Cold Evidence Before You

Apparently it was up to a Frenchman to write the most convincing book so far in behalf of the so-called "flying saucer" phenomenon.

"The Truth About Flying Saucers," by Aime Michel, eminent French mathematician and engineer, hangs out a long list of questions that are sure to baffle all the honest skeptics. And Michel hits the target by a process that far too many of the "saucer" believers have ignored in the vast stack of "saucer books" already on the market.

Instead of dealing in weird personal experiences (he says, in fact, he has never seen a "saucer") or relating same through uncertain second-hand channels, the author gathers what seems to be one of the most complete collections of objective saucer reports in any library or on any bookstand. Then, the reader is left to draw his or her own conclusions.

True indeed, Michel in most of the cases points to facts that knock holes in the theories of those who refuse to admit the existence of the airborne discs. But he makes it clear that he is merely laying the evidence on the line, and he likewise elaborates on the side of the skeptics when he himself has honest doubts. There is also a good bit of technical discussion for those who like it. Most readers will skip it.

OUT OF IT all has come a book that everybody should read—even those who proclaim in advance their amusement with the whole idea of unexplained objects sailing the skies. The book may fail to break their disbelief, but it is certain to put a lot of wondering dents in it.

In the introduction to "The Truth About Flying Saucers," published less than two weeks ago, Michel lists the highly authoritative sources he has tapped for his work. And then he adds in part: "The above are the main sources of the facts I have placed on record. I have offered explanations of these facts and the reader will find the explanations accompanying the individual sightings to which they refer, where they are of particular occurrences, or at the end of the book when they involve theories of a more general character. . . . It is for my readers to decide whether my explanations of the strange phenomenon which we are investigating are plausible, or whether they merely add to the mystery.

"I can at any rate assure them that I have been careful to guard against preconceived ideas, either about the evidence given by witnesses or their explanations.

"If, after reading my book, the reader finds himself pondering more deeply on the unknown world to which he is now about to be introduced, and is inclined to believe that the universe may be more complex and mysterious than he thinks, and that it has not yet surrendered its most fantastic secrets, neither his efforts nor mine will have been in vain."

THE CAREFUL and detached purpose with which Michel approached his job is indicated in his reference to one of his main sources for the new book. He draws upon the work of Major Donald Keyhoe, whose books ("The Flying Saucers Are Real" and "Flying Saucers From Outer Space") were among the first strong arguments printed in the cause of the "saucers". In commenting on this source, Michel said:

"I have relied on the information given by Major Donald Keyhoe in his two books, so far as it is derived from Air Technical Intelligence sightings or records. This attitude on my part must not be taken as indicating any doubts about the value of Major Keyhoe's work.

"He is sometimes rather enthusiastic in his comments, but in recording facts he is scrupulously honest and conscientious."

Dealing as it does with a world-wide look at the "saucer" phenomenon, "The Truth About Flying Saucers" will tell the reader about many strange incidents which were not given prominent attention by the American press. The book also stresses the point that, because "saucers" or other strange flying objects were seen centuries ago in various parts of the world, it does not mean that they cannot continue to exist today.

Michel takes a fresh and closely critical look at most of the better known American "saucer" incidents, beginning with the famed Mantell case. As he points out, the Mantell case is undoubtedly the best known of all the "saucer" stories originating in this country because of its tragic ending.

On January 7, 1948, at Godman Air Base at Fort Knox, Ky., Captain Thomas F. Mantell met his death while pursuing a huge, unidentified object which appeared over the base around 3 p. m.

Kentucky state police had warned the Air Force base to be alert for the object's appearance about one-half hour before that time.

THE DETAILS of this sensational incident, and the many new lights which Michel turns upon it, are far too numerous to mention here. But the reader, even though already familiar with the case, will be impressed anew by several points underlined by Michel as follows:

1. A number of officers in the control tower, while Mantell and two other pilots "scrambled" in F-51 pursuit planes, clearly watched an object that "was a sort of disc, with the top side shaped like an inverted cone. . . . It was of gigantic size. . . . At the top was a red spot which glowed intermittently."

2. When Mantell's voice finally came over the loudspeaker, he said: "I am closing in now to take a good look. It is directly ahead of me and still moving at about half my speed. The things looks metallic and of tremendous size."

3. A few minutes later, the other two pilots confirmed that they could also see the object, though Mantell was the only one of the three in position to make a real effort to reach it.

4. A moment later, Mantell reported to the tower: "It's going up now and forward as fast as I am. That's 360 miles per hour. I'm going up to 20,000 feet and if I'm not closer, I'll abandon chase."

5. According to the Air Force,

that was Mantell's last message.

6. HE WAS found dead in the wreckage of his F-51, which — instruments showed — had "disintegrated" only a few minutes after the time recorded on his last radio comment.

7. The Air Force, after at first announcing that Mantell must have been chasing the planet Venus, revised its findings to say that the object "is still considered unidentified."

Of such interesting material is Michel's book composed. If the "saucer" mystery intrigues you at all, you will find "The Truth About Flying Saucers" worth every minute you give it.

Heavy Eating Turtle Destined For Zoo

BROKEN BOW, Okla. (AP) — A Broken Bow man, pondering the problem of what to do with his huge turtle which he said was "eating me out of house and home," may have found the answer. Give it to the zoo.

Bob Jenni, who is in charge of the zoo's reptile exhibit, said he has been seeking several big turtles for his exhibit and plans to pick up Pate's turtle some time this week.

WHY GOVERNMENT IS BIG

MANY CITIZENS deplore a big federal government and wonder how it got that way.

Yet there is a vocal demand from the Detroit area that the federal government do something about unemployment caused by lay-offs in the auto industry. Public opinion seems to favor the huge proposed highway spending program for the federal government.

A Kansas newspaper runs an editorial on the front page serving notice that its area, while happy over the reopening of an ordinance plant at Parsons, feels that more contracts should come its way.

In southwest Kansas a group of drought-stricken countries are seeking designation by the federal government as disaster areas to make federal benefits available.

This is the pattern all over the country. Any one of these requests is legitimate and deserves consideration by the federal government.

Yet many individuals still talk as though it is astonishing that the federal government has swollen to its present size. They ignore the unpleasant explanation that their demands have made it so.

A PARADOX—OR IS IT?

THREE OR FOUR pages of want ads appear in a typical Detroit newspaper each day, calling for workers—skilled and semi-skilled persons.

At the same time there are about 175,000 unemployed persons in the state, of whom 112,000 are in Detroit. This unemployment has caused Walter Reuther to issue some of his characteristic diatribes, aimed at the employers.

The reason for this seeming paradox is that automation is taking over so rapidly that unskilled labor is rapidly moving out of the picture. The newer type of employee must know how to operate machines or perhaps have proficiency in some kind of engineering, or in business administration.

Science and know-how are at a premium everywhere and the change is rapid. The moral of the story for young people is not to expect employment as unskilled workers.

NIPPING WAYWARDNESS

AN INTERESTING experiment is being conducted in New York City schools, based on the findings of Harvard University researchers that the symptoms of budding delinquency can be spotted in the child of first grade age. A "delinquency prediction scale" worked out at Harvard has been used to select 300 New York first graders identified as betraying the symptoms.

To half of these children will be applied all the known corrective measures for halting or reversing anti-social tendencies. The rest will be left as a "control" to go their way with no more attention than normally falls to the lot of the difficult pupil.

The basic idea that early childhood years are important in the formation of character is of course familiar to every reading parent. The experiment seeks ways by which this knowledge may be applied to the rearing of a whole generation of happily adjusted adults.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Those who are interested in taking advantage of tax sanctuaries would do well to obtain from the publishers, Prentice-Hall, a pamphlet by Walter H. Diamond on "Tax Advantages of Incorporating in Liberia, Panama and Honduras." Many take advantage of tax sanctuaries which means that whereas most of us pay what the law requires, the corporations that can afford to hire lawyers and accountants can make enormous income tax savings legitimately.

Diamond's purpose is apparently to advise firms that have funds abroad and do not wish to bring them to the United States as dividends which make them subject to income taxes, less the credit for foreign taxes paid and subject also to a possible penalty on unreasonable accumulations.

The pamphlet says: "...Liberia, Panama and Honduras... have deliberately arranged and designed their laws to permit foreign businesses (particularly American style)... to make profits and keep them too. Thus, the American business can, in effect, cache its foreign earnings in a Liberian, Panamanian or Honduran corporate pocketbook until it is good and ready to bring them home. In the meantime, those earnings will be sheltered from United States taxes and immune from exchange risks and added foreign taxes."

I had held the view that the best set-up for an American company seeking to evade the income tax was to incorporate in Liechtenstein and to keep the money in Switzerland. Diamond, who is an outstanding authority, believes that Liberia, Panama and Honduras are better than Liechtenstein, which he described as until recently being one of the principal incorporating paradises in the world. He finds that many American firms which formerly were incorporated in Liechtenstein have switched to Liberia, or "if their operations are located in Latin America, to Panama or Honduras."

How many American businesses take advantage of the various tax sanctuaries is not known and is a matter for Congressional investigation. The Liberian government in 1948 set up the International Trust Company of Liberia to advise foreign corporations on how to gain benefits by incorporating in Liberia.

This trust company is also willing to act as a bank, as corporate managers and as resident business agents. Practically every foreign business firm, using Liberia as a tax sanctuary or for other purposes, employs the International Trust Company of Liberia.

It is not necessary for such a corporation actually to engage in commercial or industrial activities in Liberia or even to maintain an office there, except for the use of the International Trust Company's facilities. It is not necessary for any Liberian to be an officer or director of a Liberian corporation and the books and records of such a corporation can be kept anywhere in the world.

One of the most irksome problems that faces those who own large quantities of "hot" money, that is, usually American dollars in unaccounted for cash, is to legitimize that money without disclosing its real ownership. Liberia offers a haven for such money because, under its laws, "all stock can be bearer stock and the owners can thereby obtain complete anonymity. Liberian law does not require disclosure of the names of companies incorporated there or their owners."

This is an excellent situation for those who own the kind of money that cannot bear investigation and who wish to use their funds to buy existing and important

SYNOPSIS
Priscilla Paige is bored with her job in a New York office, yet doesn't want to get married. An opportunity to escape presents itself in a trip to Apalachicola, Florida, to settle the estate left unexpectedly to her by a great-uncle. Priscilla's friend, older, wiser Rita Lambert—drives with her to claim the mysterious mansion. Lookout House, which is rumored haunted and has a secret passage. They decide to keep the purpose of their visit to themselves because three strange men seem curiously interested. They are Bill Dural, who says he is a writer, Red Gallagher, a fisherman and Luis Alvarez, a wealthy yachtman. Priscilla takes a midnight drive and finds Bill Dural trailing her. Next morning Attorney Todd takes the two girls to the old mansion.

CHAPTER 8

PRISCILLA and Rita stopped behind Mr. Todd's car and sat looking at the ancient house. It was a huge house, many-galleried, weather-beaten, but not unattractive. The windows were long and shuttered, a shutter hanging here and there. There was a Captain's walk, and the house was surrounded by a tall iron fence on top of a foot-high brick wall. Huge oaks and magnolias crowded into the tangled garden. Heavy columns supported an upper gallery. Windows reached to the floor. A brick walk led from the entrance gates to the broad steps. Bricks were missing, grass growing in the spaces.

Priscilla said, "If it could only talk, what tales it could tell! And it does look sort of haunted, doesn't it?"

"It certainly looks lonely and deserted," Rita said.

"What on earth will I do with the house if I can't sell it, Rita? It's monstrous!"

"You'll sell. Somebody will buy it for some purpose—and of course the sooner the better. Looks like a rambling hotel." Her eyes moved over the grounds. "Must have really been a show place at one time, but I can understand why Mr. Todd said it would be difficult to find a purchaser."

Mr. Todd joined them. "It looks just as it did the first time I saw it, and folks say it's looked the same for fifty years. 'Course the shades used to be up, and grass and weeds were out."

"It's the loneliest-looking place I ever saw," said Priscilla. "Even a ghost would be lonesome there."

Mr. Todd led the way up the creaking steps and unlocked the heavy doors. It was dim and cool inside and smelled of mold and dust, mice and rotting wood. He raised a few shades, opened shutters, revealing a thick, brownish coating of dust over everything. Curtains hung, fragile and brittle with dust. There was a square piano with most of the ivories missing. All the furniture was heavy, richly carved, very beautiful. Priscilla was thinking that room could not be found for it in a modern home. Chandeliers which had held candles in long-ago days were dusty and fly-specked; upholstery was faded and worn. There was a huge grandfather clock, old albums, pictures.

They opened drawers, discovering heavy dull silver, good china, yellowed linens.

Rita said, "Let's look around this time, Priscilla. Then decide later what you should do with it. There's no use trying to decide right now. Some of these pieces will bring a lot of money."

They spent almost an hour going from room to room, upstairs and down, and when they were down again, Mr. Todd said briskly, "I'll just look up. When you decide what you're going to do, we'll come back. You can be thinking about it."

"We won't take any more of your time Mr. Todd," Rita said agreeably. "Leave the key with us and we'll look around a little more. I saw a sign down the street advertising antiques. They might be interested in some of these things."

Mr. Todd's hesitation was so apparent that Rita was sure he didn't want them to have the key. He turned it over reluctantly, suggesting that they drop it by his office, to which Rita made no reply. She did ask if he could send someone to cut the grass and clean the grounds and give the place a better appearance before putting it on the market.

They were still there an hour later when Mr. Todd returned. His voice was worried. "I talked to several boys, but they all turned me down. Word has got around that the place is haunted and it's going to be hard to get any of them to work here."

"Then how can we get the place cleaned up?"

"I'll keep looking. Frankly," he hesitated, "if you take my advice, you'll not bother about it. Won't really make any difference when it comes to a sale."

Mr. Todd had been gone only a few minutes when a boy of about fourteen came to the door. He had met Mr. Todd. He said that he would be willing to work outside but wouldn't clean inside, "because it was haunted."

Priscilla laughed, which was a mistake. The boy said evenly, "Tain't nothin' to laugh about."

"That's right," Rita said in a friendly voice. "But we don't know much about such things. Won't you tell us why it's haunted?"

The boy shifted from one foot to the other, his eyes moving over the gaunt old house. "Don't know 'zactly why. It jes' is. Lights move around in one of those windows upstairs. And people hear voices, whisperin' like."

Priscilla said, "I'll surely accept the first offer. The place is giving me the creeps."

"Power of suggestion," Rita said. "I wouldn't say sell it because it's haunted, but sell because it's the only sensible thing to do. Let's decide what you want to do with the furniture, or better still, why not turn the whole thing over to Mr. Todd to handle with some real estate firm?"

They were preparing to wait the door when Rita said, "Wait a minute. I'm not sure that I locked the back door."

She went back, found the door locked, and had turned to go when she saw a roll of bills on the floor—new, crisp, and shiny. Wonderingly she picked the roll up and examined it. Twenty-five twenty-dollar bills under a rubber band. Had Mr. Todd dropped it there? If so, and he had missed it, he certainly must be upset by now. She would have to telephone him.

"Look, Priscilla, did you drop this?"

Priscilla looked at the roll of bills and gasped. "Heavens, no! I never carry that much cash. Where did it come from?"

"I found it on the floor by the back door. I wonder why we didn't see it before."

Priscilla giggled. "Well, if the place is haunted with greenbacks, maybe I'd better not sell after all."

"He must have. How else would it have got there? That's new money—and no one's been inside for a long time, he said. How much is it?"

"Twenty-five twenty-dollar bills."

"Glory be!" Priscilla exclaimed. "Rita, what if Mr. Todd says it isn't his?"

"It has to be his; there's no other explanation. Let's go and telephone him."

Premenstrual Tension A Many-Sided Problem

By NORMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PREMENSTRUAL tension is no longer a hush-hush subject. It is a serious problem, but a problem of the results of premenstrual with a solution.

Family quarrels, job interruptions, social conflicts—even divorce and crime—frequently can be traced directly to this terrific pressure build-up preceding the monthly periods.

Doctors estimate that as many as 50 to 75 per cent of American women in the child-bearing period of life—some put the figure affected at 20,000,000—suffer in varying degrees.

Suffer In Silence

For the most part, they suffer in silence.

Many women are unaware of any physical or personality changes during this monthly cycle. And many others, although acutely aware of the situation, are resigned in the belief that nothing can be done to help them.

Premenstrual tension may range from a feeling of mild fatigue to a full-fledged psychosis. Nervous and emotional instability is the major complaint.

The results may be serious. It's about time we had a frank discussion of this problem.

Basic Cause

Since many women are completely unaware of the basic cause of their difficulty, they do not realize that often they actually are the real source of their family disturbances and social conflicts.

Dads Like Sons To Follow

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Few things warm a man's heart more than Father's Day than to know he has a son following successfully in his footsteps.

And every day is Father's Day to him if he knows the son is showing more promise than he himself did at the same age.

What deeper flow of satisfaction can a father have than to turn over the running of his business to his son, or at least to know that he has a son who will in time be able to shoulder that responsibility?

This desire that a son take up the same calling is probably as old as mankind. Even if a man has met with only mediocre success—or even failure—in his own line of work, he often nourishes a secret hope his son will take up the same path and go on and excel him. It affords a further continuity to his own life and work.

Sometimes, of course, it is impractical for a father to want his son to pursue the same career. Every now and then a 6-foot policeman is a 5-foot-4 son, too small for "the force."

Artists, opera singers and authors have a problem in this respect, too. They have special talents which, for some reason, rarely are hereditary. There have been some distinguished exceptions.

I knew an old Irishman once who used to say gravely that the reason he never wanted to be Pope was because "I couldn't hand the job on to my son."

But lawyers, doctors, politicians and businessmen often have sons who take up the same life-work.

American corporations team with noteworthy examples, ranging from elderly John D. Rockefeller Jr., who followed his famous father in both finance and philanthropy, to young Henry Ford II.

A few more you may not be quite so familiar with:

Donald W. Douglas, pioneer airplane designer and manufacturer, has a son, Donald Jr., who, at 38 is vice president in charge of sales and since 1943 has supervised the testing of 20 types of aircraft.

Frederick H. Ecker, honorary chairman of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., whose assets of nearly $14 billion make it the world's second largest business enterprise, has a son, Frederick W. Ecker, who is president.

Only last month Thomas J. Watson turned over the reins of the vast International Business Machines Corp. to Thomas J. Watson Jr., who is 42. Young Tom started in the company as a $185 a month student salesman.

Alfred C. Fuller founded the Fuller Brush Co. as a one-man operation 50 years ago. His son, A. Howard Fuller, who first worked for the firm as a door-to-door salesman, became president in 1943 at 30, added cosmetics and other items to its sales line and increased the annual business from $20 million to $90 million.

Lipstick Classed Most Important By Today's Gal

Where would milady be without lipstick, that bright badge of courage?

It is one of the most important of all cosmetics. When a gal has her lipstick on, she is ready to face the world. Without it, she feels and looks, drab and colorless.

But lipstick, too, can present problems.

Do you have trouble with lipstick "wearing off"? Unconsciously you probably eat it off. The result is a patchy lip line that is anything but pretty. The only solution is to concentrate and stop licking your lips.

Dry lips are not attractive either. Apply lipstick to them and the effect is worsened. The thing to do is to clear up the dry condition by using a lip pomade. Apply it at night and we promise that morning lips will be smooth and attractive again.

Lipstick that has been applied with a heavy hand also causes a beauty problem; it will rub off on the teeth, where it looks perfectly terrible. Avoid this by blotting lips after an application.

Never use rouge and lipstick that do not match. Nothing looks worse than a gal wearing an orange-red rouge with a blue-red lipstick. Match the two cosmetics and you will be sure they flatter.

When it comes to color, lipstick should match clothes, too. That is why you need a wardrobe of lipstick shades so you will have something to go with everything.

Akron Girl Reporter Tells Of Impressions Of Russians

By HELEN WATERHOUSE
Akron Beacon Journal Writer
AKRON, Ohio (AP)—I'm back home after covering 2,000 miles of Soviet-land by train and boat, Russian autos and Russian planes.

Back to the joy of a good cup of American coffee, to the relief of not having your passport confiscated every time you enter a hotel, to a land where the individual counts again.

It's a relief to find little girls who are not all wearing the bright red ties of the junior Communist organization, the Pioneers.

It's a relief to find bigger girls who are trim and shapely and beautiful. Instead of drably dressed, overweight teenagers with muscular arms.

It's wonderful not to have to carry on any more endless discussions on the most minor details of business or travel, with people unused to American stream-lined-business methods.

On the plane coming home, it was wonderful, too, to hear a passenger planning to go to church on the morrow. And another passenger hoping to get into New York in time for a ball game.

One of the impressions that hit hardest was the complete godlessness of the Soviet people today. A visit to dozens of churches proved that only a few very old people attend the comparatively few churches still open for business.

Many churches have become museums, like the beautiful ones in the Kremlin and Red Square. After walking many blocks in the city of Odessa, I found one Roman Catholic Church and several ancient Russian churches, all practically empty except for the aged. I found no Protestant churches.

Young people frankly told me there is no God, no Jesus Christ. "That is all a fable . . . yours is a weak religion," they said.

As to ball games, while Soviet youth are keenly athletic and stadiums are sprinkled all over the country, American baseball is unknown. Rugby and soccer take the place of football.

I watched the Swedish steward aboard my plane as he solicitously tucked a blanket around a little boy passenger and fastened his seat belt.

No one bothers with the comfort of passengers on Russian planes and there are no blankets or seat belts.

When I overheard two young air-plane mechanics in Copenhagen on the return trip arguing over job salaries I was thankful to be back in a land where there is still competition.

The thing you miss most in Soviet-land is the entire lack of a spirit of competition. The complete complacency of these people, who always say they find their lives perfectly satisfactory today.

"After all we had starvation and war tragedies before"—is another thing that impresses you. It's unnatural to find so many people all satisfied with what their government is giving them, with apparently no ambitions to better themselves in any way.

Above all, the overwhelming desire for peace—the word that is on everyone's lips over there today—is amazing. While their leaders go on putting out peace propaganda and building the country's strength toward war, these people plead for a peaceful world every time you talk to them, in groups or singly.

"Please take the message back to America that we want peace," said every class of school children, every gathering of men and women I interviewed.

There are no war toys allowed on the toy counters. A recent law passed since the Stalin era says that any one overheard discussing a future war will receive a sentence. A sentence means banishment to Siberia. There are no jails or penitentiaries.

Other impressive things—There is no juvenile delinquency in Soviet-land. Plenty of young fellows get drunk on Russian wine, and act silly on the street, however.

But I was told in Yalta that robbery is practically unknown there. Stories of juvenile delinquency in America baffled them. Russian youths are always busy, working at jobs or at their athletics.

Since all women and girls work at one job or another as soon as they are out of school, there is little chance for wild parties. Comic books are forbidden and so are detective stories and magazines of the love story and pulp variety.

Everyone reads in Russia—from the coal miner who told me he took his family to the opera twice a week and who was reading Theodore Dreiser's "American Tragedy" and Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield," to the middle aged housewife in her crowded flat which had a bookcase of the classics—both Russian and English—corner of her room.

Russia is a country dedicated to youth, with youth statuary instead of billboards on every roadside, with camps for young pioneers far more deluxe than the best of our summer camps at home.

"Palaces of culture" where youth may receive free training in art and music and cultural things, along with free painting materials to create the pictures they would paint, are in every city.

Nursery for workers children are located in attractive, lawn-surrounded buildings, with plenty of nurses, doctors and teachers.

One other thing. The horrors of war hit you in the face in these Russian cities that were bombed almost into extinction. It seems like every other man you see on the streets has a leg off, an arm off or is pushing himself—legless—on a little cart. Women in black widows' dresses predominate in the crowds.

"Peace—peace." No wonder they want peace.

Real Property Value Setup Seen Target Of Ohio Study

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Local and state tax officials soon may be taking a closer look at Ohio's Hoffman Act—the legislation which seeks to equalize real property values on a state-wide basis.

There have been comments from various officials indicating their belief that the objective of the act may not be fully realized unless corrective legislative action is taken.

The Ohio Board of Tax Appeals, in the past week completed approval of the 1955 real property valuation abstracts of the state's 88 counties. The abstracts are the source for collection of 1956 taxes.

Total valuation of all real property was fixed at $14,141,453,880. That was a boost of $1,108,970,650 over the previous year.

But the "equalization" troubles were brought to bold relief by the fact that, for the first time, various county auditors were required to prepare their respective abstracts showing a complete breakdown of four major classes of properties.

This included agricultural, residential, commercial and industrial properties.

The initial report showed that the total value of industrial real estate was $1,502,406,500—or 10.6 per cent of the total state-wide property valuations.

At the same time, the state-wide valuation of residential properties was fixed at $7,977,267,620 or 56.4 per cent of the total.

Commenting on the low valuations for industrial property, board Chairman Edwin F. Sawicki pointed to recent Supreme Court decisions and legislative enactments.

American corporations without disclosing the real owners. Diamond further says:

"Liberia is particularly well-known as a haven for American shipping seeking relief from high United States taxes and labor costs. The International Trust Company handles the registration of vessels under the Liberian flag. The Government's only charge is a registration fee plus an annual tax based on tonnage. Part of this annual charge goes to the Trust Company."

It is possible, under American law, for a Liberian corporation to deposit its funds in a bank in the United States where they are kept as Liberian funds, which can then be applied for business purposes outside the United States.

To make up an example out of whole cloth for purposes of illustration, the international dope syndicate could organize a company which it might call the "Atlantic Ocean Corporation," or any other name, as a Liberian corporation, the real owners of which need never be disclosed. This anonymous corporation could then deposit its funds in New York banks and buy American businesses.

as being largely responsible. These factors switched valuations from real to personal property classifications.

As a result, much of the previously classified real estate property has become personal property. And trouble comes from the fact much of this new personal property has not been reported by the county auditors.

Consequently, the counties have not only lost tax revenues from the decline in real property taxes, but even returns from the newly classed personal property.

Clyde C. Sherick, veteran member of the board, says it is not within the realm of the board to prescribe any remedy, but rather a question to be considered by the Ohio Legislative Service Commission and the Legislature itself.

"It is a question," he said, "as to just how far the state intends to go in keeping down taxes to bring new industry into the state."

Buyers Rush For Deliveries On Steel; Price Hike Seen

CLEVELAND (AP)—"Steel" Magazine today reported a last minute rush to get steel deliveries by the end of the month.

It said buyers were stepping up efforts to get shipments already promised them. Orders still could be placed for nearby delivery on some of the lesser items, such as some wire products and cold-fashioned bars.

Steel users are motivated in their efforts to get deliveries now by promise of higher prices in the second half of the year and by the possibility of a steel strike. Trade talk says prices may go up $8 to $15 a ton.

Regardless of uncertain price tags and delivery dates, pressure continues for shipments from railroad car shops and heavy construction and machinery accounts. Structural and plates continue in short supply with structural awards running 40 per cent ahead of volume a year ago. The light, flat rolled items are moving slower. "Steel" said interest in the third quarter lags, particularly from automotive buyers.

The publication said there was little chance of getting in more of the major tonnage, although steel-making operations rose one-half percentage point to 97 per cent of the rated national ingot capacity, the first change in the production rate in a month.

Steel prices held steady, with "Steel's" composite on finished products unchanged at $128.98 a net ton. Its price composite on steelmaking grades of scrap dropped to $46 a gross ton, a decline of 17 cents.

Irwin H. Such, editor-in-chief of "Steel," said new and unlimited horizons are being made by the metalworking industry by the "irresistible pressure of the American people for more goods and more time to enjoy them in a nation that is preparing to repel an atomic invasion."

He said the total output of goods and services produced in the nation in 1956 will establish a new record of nearly $2,400 a person. The figure, he said, may reach $3,200 by 1965.

"The challenge is clear," Such said. "In the immediate years ahead, America must increase her production one-third."

"It's no wonder that industrial and government-financed research this year are at a new high of $4.5 billion—up 400 million dollars from 1955, and up 750 million dollars from 1954."

District ingot production rates included Youngstown 101 per cent of rated capacity, no change; Wheeling 100.5 per cent, no change; Cleveland, 103.3 per cent, up 4.5 points; Cincinnati 92.5 per cent, down 2 points.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's nine justices, target for more attacks than any high court in a generation, made historic decisions on civil rights, civil liberties and the power of the states in the session just ended.

But it could be considered 100 per cent consistent only in its opposition to racial segregation in public places. It showed great concern for individuals. But it did not always rule in their favor against the states.

Nevertheless, Southerners attack it for its stand on segregation. And states' rights, including Southerners, want the court "curbed" for the restraint it put on the actions of states, or for knocking out their laws.

The court, in the term which ended last week, outlawed segregation in tax-supported colleges and universities and in public places of recreation. This followed up its ban in 1954 on public school segregation.

But it avoided throwing another log on the racial fire when it was asked to rule whether segregation on buses within a state is also unlawful. It tossed the problem back to a lower court.

This only postponed the day of decision. The problem will eventually come back to the high court for a final answer, which may be given late in 1956 or sometime in 1957.

But the pattern was not quite consistent in the fields of civil liberties, states' rights, and the powers of the federal government.

The court ruled the government must have "good cause" for trying to deprive a man of citizenship through denaturalization proceedings. And it knocked a hole in President Eisenhower's program for getting "security risks" out of government jobs. It decided the program can't apply to work in non-sensitive jobs.

But it upheld the 1954 immunity law. This law says a man can't escape testifying before a federal grand jury or in court by pleading the Fifth Amendment's protection against self-incrimination if, in order to learn what he knows, the government promises him immunity from prosecution for anything he says.

The court ruled a New York public school teacher could not be fired simply because he pleaded the Fifth Amendment when asked questions about Communist party membership. States' rights looked on this as an intrusion on states' rights.

But the court refused to hear the plea of a California public school teacher who was fired for not answering a couple of questions about Communist membership. The questions were described as relevant to his fitness for public employment.

And the court upheld the right of a private firm in California to fire a woman for "just cause" on grounds she was a Communist. The decision which brought the loudest protests from states' rightsers was the court's ruling that sedition against the United States can be prosecuted only in federal courts, although about 42 states have some kind of sedition laws.

The Supreme Court also said a state court can't stop peaceful picketing by a labor union whose officials refuse to comply with the

Boy's Body Washes Up In Lake Erie

CLEVELAND (AP) — Since last Wednesday, when he left home for a playground, 8-year-old John Dale Mower had been missing.

And then Sunday afternoon a long search came to an end.

A small body was spotted in the waters of Lake Erie, about 500 feet off the Lake Shore Country Club.

Members of the Coast Guard who made the discovery. A short while later, at the Coast Guard station in Cleveland Harbor, the boy's stepfather, Ted Haake, 26, knew in a glance the body was that of Johnny. He recognized the black shoes, with zippers, which he started for Sowiński playground on the east side.

The lad's blue jeans were on the body, but a knit shirt was missing. The boy's mother, Mrs. Virginia Haake, 32, sobbed, "I can't believe he's dead." She was not permitted to see the body until it was taken to the county morgue.

Later, the boy's father, John D. Mower, 33, confirmed the identification at the morgue.

The body bore no marks of violence, said homicide chief David E. Kerr.

Dr. Samuel R. Gerber, Cuyahoga County coroner, planned a full examination to determine whether drowning was the cause of the boy's death.

Police said the boy could have fallen into Doan Creek, near his home, which later was flooded by heavy rains. The creek empties into the lake.

Ohio Boys' State Names Delegates

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's representatives at the Boys' National Convention next month will be Richard Gorsuch of Westerville and Albert Hetrick of Fremont. Both are 16.

The national meeting will be held July 20-27 at College Park, Md.

The two representatives were chosen at the conclusion Sunday of the annual Buckeye Boys' State.

Young Gorsuch was governor of the Buckeye State and Hetrick was mayor of the prize-winning city.

The top annual award of Buckeye Boys' State, the Mason trophy, went to Robert Coen of Mansfield, speaker of the House.

Taft-Hartley labor law's non-Communist affidavit requirement. The court also took these actions against states:

It said they must provide adequate means for poor persons to appeal criminal convictions, but not necessarily free stenographic transcript of trials.

And, although many states have "right-to-work" laws—bans on union shops—the court knocked them out so far as railway unions are concerned. It didn't say whether they are valid for other unions.

Yet—the court upheld the rights of states to prohibit mass picketing, violence and threats of violence by strikers. It said the federal Taft-Hartley labor law doesn't provide the only means for controlling such disorders.

And, on the side of the states, the court said military housing projects built and operated by private firms on government land are subject to state and local property taxes.

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am eldest of eight children. I am a high school girl in my sophomore year, and I plan to take up psychology, in the field of social work, eventually.

But how can I hope to succeed, when I am constantly hurting the people I love most? Not only my family, but others too. I am not very popular due to this, as you can imagine.

To give an example, a friend wanted my 9-year-old sister Ann to stay at her house for the evening; and I said right out that Ann couldn't come until she learns to do her duties at home. I also pointed out that it had taken Ann an hour and a half to get ready for school that morning. Ann started to cry, and after her friend had gone, I apologized; but it was too late then. The harm was done.

I still can't carry on a conversation with many of the nicer girls and boys at school, because of the damage unwittingly done to my self-esteem.

I want and need good friends, but can't trust my own judgment in choosing yours anymore, nor in keeping quiet. I'd hate to discuss this with my pastor, or teacher, or anyone who knows me.

D. R. DEAR D. R.: Back of this smokescreen of miscellaneous comment about yourself, you are wrestling with a bad conscience about your jealous badgering of your little sister Ann. I take it.

Apparently this has become a habit with you, and you are guiltily aware that it is "wearing her down," as the saying goes. That it is fraying her nerves, and driving a wedge between her and the fond friendships (and situational successes) she might have, if you'd allow her a fair chance.

Why are you jealous of Ann? As I get the drift, it is because she has an offhand talent for friendship that you lack; a lovable quality that you envy in her. In her, you see the person you'd like to be like; and you are being compulsively cruel and spiteful to her, as a blind expression of jealous unhappiness. You strike out, to take the joy out of life for her, because you feel so miserable at her age, (and still feel wretchedly out of tune).

You are a chronic sufferer from anxious tension; and your personality needs basic love nurture, or sympathetic acceptance from a protective counselor, much as a parched plant needs plentiful watering. Although you speak well of your parents, it's probable they've lacked time or spirit to love you sufficiently in this sense. Also, they may feel somehow inferior to families they admire—thus communicating a stream of uneasiness to you.

My advice is, be a brave girl, and discuss your hopes and accumulated heartaches with your pastor or a congenial teacher—using this article to break the ice.

Children's Story Author Dies At 102

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mrs. Frances M. Ford, author of a number of children's stories, died in her sleep here at the age of 102. Her best known story was "The Little Engine That Could," written in 1911. At that time she was using the pen name "Uncle Nat."

She received her first royalties from the story 43 years later after a distant cousin established proof of her authorship.

The tale was that of a little engine hauling a heavy load of Christmas toys over a mountain to children on the other side.

Ford Foundation Aiding Hospitals

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Foundation says checks totaling $26,080,200 are being mailed this week to 959 hospitals in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The payments are part of 200 million dollars in hospital grants approved by the foundation's trustees last December. Payments totaling 69 million dollars were made to 2,000 hospitals in April and May.

The foundation said Sunday it hopes all eligible hospitals will have received one half of their grants by July 31. The remaining half will be paid in March, 1957.

The first tin plate in America was made in a Pittsburgh copper works, in 1858.

Hamiltonian Named By Amvets

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Amvets Sunday elected a new state commander. He is Edgar Williams of Hamilton.

Others elected at the Amvets' 11th annual convention here included vice commanders Rolland Cronk, Sandusky, and Herbert Pofahl, Cuyahoga Falls; and finance officer William Cummings of Massillon.

The convention adopted a resolution calling for further study of the proposed veterans' benefit bill now before Congress.

About 500 Amvets from 73 Ohio posts attended the two-day meeting.

Highway Expert Stays Off Roads

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — Because "the highways are too crowded," Rep. George H. Fallon (D-Md.), author of a current bill for federal highway aid, says he doesn't do much driving.

Fallon, who will participate today in the 50th annual meeting of the Ohio State Automobile Assn. at Cedar Point, said, "I have a car two years old and it has 9,000 miles on it. Driving is no longer a pleasure."

The legislator introduced the House version of a bill authorizing more than 24 billion dollars in federal aid to be used in a 13-year program for highway improvement.

Splendiferous Marion Davies Beach House Being Wrecked

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ocean House will soon be no more. Thus will pass the most notable reminder of Hollywood's splendiferous era.

That was the roaring '20s, when the booming film industry made millionaires out of movie stars. That was when you could live like a millionaire, too, as did Marion Davies. She poured 34 million dollars into a beach home that has been called the Versailles of Hollywood, after the lavish palace of French kings.

Now the huge manor is to be torn down. It will be replaced by a more up-to-date feature of American culture: A motel.

What a place it was! Fifty-five bathrooms and 37 fireplaces. Entire rooms from famous English mansions. A 110-foot swimming pool lined with Italian marble.

These were the surroundings in which the blonde actress entertained the movie greats and visiting royalty. The place consisted of five colonial houses nestled between the Santa Monica Palisades and the Pacific sands. The present owner, Joseph Brown, plans to tear down the main house and two others to make room for a drive-in hotel. The other two buildings and the pool will remain as a beach club.

Recently I paid a last visit to the Davies mansion. It was a grey day, and no one was around the huge swimming pool, which operates as part of the Sand and Sea Club nowadays. Manager Thomas Huber said this will be the third summer that Ocean House has been closed.

"We only had 30 rooms," he explained. "It was just too expensive to run the place. It took too much to open and close it every season."

He handed me the keys to the main house, and I wandered through the darkened halls. First stop was the rathskeller on the lower level. Now dusty and worn, it had been a favorite gathering place for more intimate parties—say, 50 or less. Originally it had been an inn in Surrey, dating back to 1560. The mantelpiece was the oldest in the house; it was marked 1642.

On the main floor I found one ornate room after another. The dining room, reception room and drawing room came from Burton, Hall, County Clare, Ireland, and all of them are 60 feet long. The gold room is the most dazzling.

Antique mirrors line the walls and the columns and ceilings are still bright with the gold leaf that took New York craftsmen six months to apply. But some of the ceiling paint has cracked from leaks.

Yeggs Use Water To Cool Drills

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — Thieves who used water from buckets to cool their electric drills and worked under the light of a boy scout flashlight Sunday night escaped with $7,000 from a department store safe.

Asst. Police Chief Stewart Lambert said the thieves also used small throw rugs to muffle the noise of the drills. A nightwatchman who discovered the theft at the S. W. Anderson store said he heard no sounds.

Ohio Auto Clubs Opening Parley

COLUMBUS (AP) — The Ohio State Automobile Assn. reports that leaders of 58 AAA clubs in Ohio will meet at Hotel Breakers, Cedar Point on Lake Erie, today and tomorrow to celebrate two milestones in the association.

One is the group's 50th annual convention, and the other a new record of 460,000 club members.

Ex-Slugger Names Horses After Yanks

COLUMBUS — Although he's transferred his active sports interest from baseball to harness racing, Charlie (King Kong) Keller, former New York Yankee outfielder, plans to maintain at least a nominal link with the national pastime.

In recognition of the many years he spent patrolling the Yankee Stadium outfield in company with Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich, Keller has named his modest Frederick, Md., breeding nursery "Yankee Land Farm" and will attach the prefix "Yankee" to all trotters and pacers which are raised there.

The first two "Yankies," a colt and a filly, were registered this week by the U. S. Trotting Association, parent body of the sport, which also approved the farm name.

Keller's first arrival was a son of Meadow Pace-Isabel Star and it will answer to the name Yankee Star. The second foal was a filly by Direct Rhythm from Meadow Meda and has been named Yankee Queen.

Keller, who retired from baseball several years ago after a spectacular American League career, became interested in harness racing while watching trainer Joe Eyer condition his stock at Frederick Fairgrounds. He met Eyer and later helped him train some horses.

Last fall, upon the advice of Del Miller, one of the sport's leading figures, Keller purchased the mares Isabel Star and Meadow Meda, the latter from Miller himself. He plans to buy additional mares but will keep his horse breeding operation at a moderate level.

The former Yankee slugger says he has no plans for racing any of his own stock, preferring to sell his yearlings at auction. He qualifies that by reserving the right to race an occasional filly which he may want to retain for breeding purposes.

Needles Heads For Jersey Track

NEW YORK — Needles, the Florida colt who gives trainer Hugh Fontaine a case of nerves every time he steps on a race track, heads for Monmouth Park in New Jersey tomorrow with the Belmont Stakes and the 3-year-old championship safely stowed away.

Needles threw his famous late punch in the final half mile of the mile and one half Belmont Saturday, overpowering the Calumet Farm's Fabius in the stretch, then holding off the equally tardy charge of C. V. Whitney's Career Boy. For almost the first mile, Needles ran last in the field of eight 3-year-olds.

Europeans Sweep Equestrian Tests

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Europeans swept the board in the equestrian Olympics because of a flood of top-class competitors.

Sweden, the host country, won three gold medals in the eight-day Olympics which ended yesterday. Germans took two on the final day and Britain won one.

Horse shows are a major sport in this part of the world and top riders are eager to get on the international teams. In the United States, there are only a few important shows.

2 Top Harness Race Cheiftrains Resign

VERNON, N. Y. — Vernon Downs harness race track has announced the resignation of two top officials in what was believed to be a brewing dispute with George P. Monaghan, state harness racing commissioner.

Octave Blake, president of South Plainville, N. J., and T. Proctor Eldred of Utica, executive vice president, resigned after a series of weekend meetings of Vernon Downs directors.

Melvin C. Eaton of Norwich, president of the Norwich Pharmacal Co., succeeds Blake.

OHIO OUTDOORS

from THE OHIO DIVISION OF WILDLIFE

A total of 120 deer have been reported accidentally killed in Ohio during the first three months of 1956. The accidental kill for the corresponding period in 1955 was 123 deer. This is a decrease of 2.4 percent for this year.

The accidental kill is approximately the same for all wildlife districts in 1956 as in 1955, except in District 5. Here an increase from eight to 13 deer, or about 63 percent occurred.

According to the figures compiled by the game section, the accidental deer kill is at about the same level in the spring of 1956 as for the same period in 1955, despite a legal kill of about 4,200 deer and a reported accidental kill of almost 800 deer.

As has been true during the past few years, Wildlife District 3, in northeastern Ohio, has had the greatest number of accidentally killed deer (68), followed by Wildlife District 4, southeastern

Ohio with 35; Wildlife District 5, central Ohio, with 13; and Wildlife District 2, northwestern Ohio with 4.

No accidentally killed deer were reported from District 6 in south-quarter.

According to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, farm ponds smaller than a half acre rarely furnish good fishing, but ponds of from one to three acres are ideal for the average family and friends.

At the present time there are more than one-and-one-half million farm ponds averaging an acre in size in the United States and the number is increasing at the rate of 100,000 ponds annually.

In 24 states the laws and policies prohibit stocking of farm ponds with fish produced in the state hatcheries. As a result the Fish and Wildlife Service each year provides more than 30 million fish, mainly warm water species, for approximately 28,000 non-commercial ponds in 42 states.

During the first four and one-half months in 1956, the fish section of the Ohio Division of Wildlife, has approved approximately 1,000 applications for federal fish to be stocked in newly-constructed farm ponds. The federal fish hatchery at Hebron furnishes the fish for newly-constructed farm ponds, after the application has been approved by the Ohio Division of Wildlife.

According to a recent survey, it is estimated that there are approximately 14,000 farm ponds in Ohio of which about 10,000 provide some fishing, the remainder being constructed principally as a source of immediately available water for cattle and fire protection.

Redleg Lineup Starting To Feel Shakeup

PHILADELPHIA — Manager Birdie Tebbetts of the Cincinnati Reds has started some lineup changes to try shaking the team out of a hitting slump.

He benched third-sacker Ray Jablonski in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader with New York, replacing him with Jim Dyck.

Jabbs' hitting spearheaded the Reds' rise early in the season after a rocky start, but his work at the plate has been progressively less effective recently.

And Wally Post was put on the bench Saturday, his right field job taken by Bob Thurman. He returned to the lineup in yesterday's second game against the Giants, but got only one single.

There was little similarity between the two games, except that they were both won on one-run margins.

The Giants took the opener, 7-6, after a free-hitting contest which had six homers, four by New York, and in which five pitchers saw action, three of them Redlegs.

But the Reds came back to win the second game, 1-0, in a tight pitchers' duel in which Joe Nuxhall brought Cincinnati its first shutout this season.

The split of two games allowed the Reds to climb back into second place in the National League, just behind Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati turns in at Philadelphia tonight for the first of three games with the Phillies. Hal Jeffcoat is slated to oppose Harvey Haddix.

Only 8 Of Browns Still Unsigned

CLEVELAND — All but eight of the Cleveland Browns who played on last year's national football championship club have signed up for the 1956 season a month before training opens.

The eight include two who aren't coming back — quarterback Otto Graham and halfback Dub Jones, who have announced retirement.

Of the remaining six, Dante Lavelli is considering retirement. Unless Lavelli returns, only Frank Gatski and tackle Lou Groza will be left from the original Cleveland Browns' club of 1946.

Middlecoff Matures, Is Rated 'Great'

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — Maturity has made Cary Middlecoff a great golfer.

But, like Ben Hogan, physical condition may keep him from becoming the greatest.

When he won his second National Open championship Saturday, posting a 81 total for 71 holes and then sweating it out in the locker room while Hogan, Julius Boros, Ted Kroll and a few others charged at him and dropped back, Middlecoff proved that he is the one golfer to beat in any tournament at this time.

The tall, now-slightly-paunchy retired dentist from Memphis, Tenn., is 35. He has been rated among the leading golf professionals ever since he won his first Open as a sophomore pro in 1949.

Until the last year or so, temperament and jittery nerves have kept him from establishing his greatness. He was the kind of player who was on top of the world — affable, friendly and humorous — when he was winning and ready to bite your ears off if a few putts didn't drop.

Golf is a $50,000-a-year business for Middlecoff, but at a time when he should be collecting, he has become a parttime player.

In the Open, Hogan and Boros tied for second with 282. Kroll had a 285 total.

In their first 1956 series against the Yankees, the Boston Red Sox pitchers permitted 34 runs in three games.

Rory Calhoun Set For Big-Time Bout

NEW YORK — Rory Calhoun crashes the big time Friday when he gets his first Madison Square

Garden main event against Willie Vaughn of Hollywood, Calif., in a bid for rating among the top 10 middleweights.

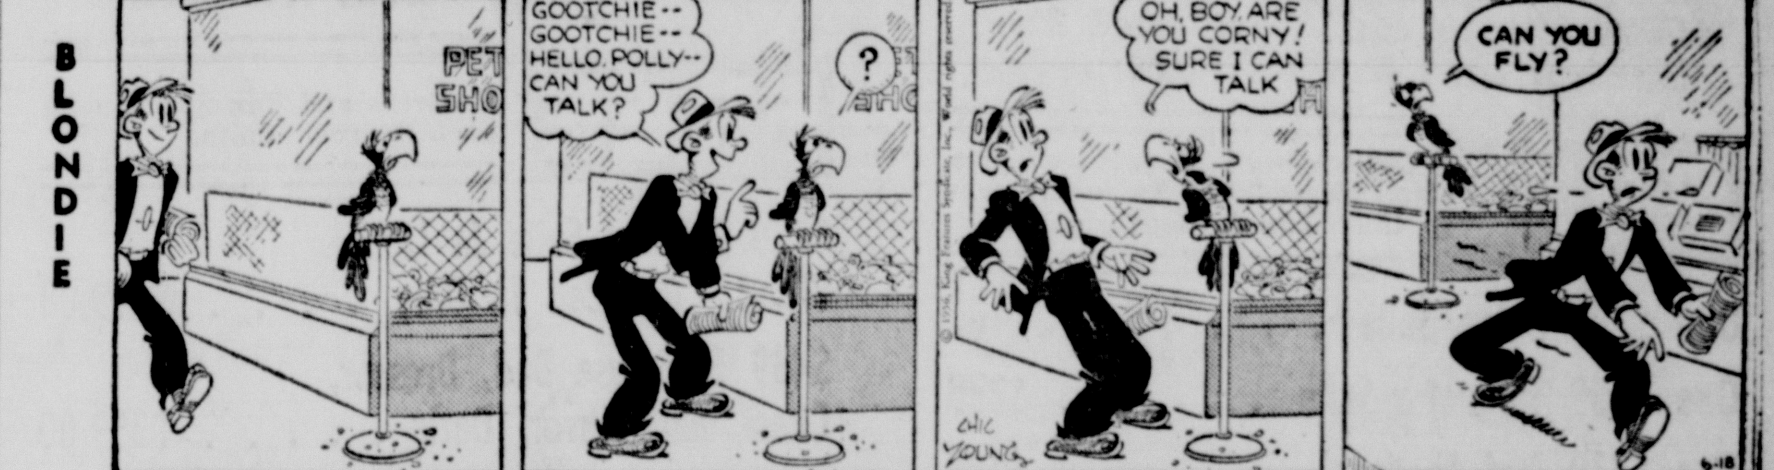

Unbeaten in his 21-bout career, the 21-year-old White Plains, N. Y., slugger has been moving up fast in the last six months. Vaughn, 23, is the California state champ but has been inactive this year.

Coach Terry Brennan of Notre Dame was the leading ground gainer in the Irish scoreless tie against Army in 1946.
